Home rule bill passed

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The General Assembly approved three bills Tuesday that could modernize local governments and provide needed drug reforms in Pennsylvania.

One grants the right of home rule to the state's 2,000 cities and municipalities.

The other two, combined into a package, provide for a coordinated alcohol, drug and narcotics program and update state laws concerning possession and sale of illegal drugs.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp hailed the passage of the two programs as "the most productive single day in the recent history of the Pennsylvania legislature."

Shapp was to have delivered a congratulatory statement to a joint session of the legislature, but the Senate took so long to pass the two bills that the address had to be cancelled.

"It is my belief that the General Assembly will not stop now," Shapp said in a statement released to the news media.

"I am confident that Pennsylvania's citizens will continue to benefit from the top-flight legislative service which has been so evident for the past 15 months," he said.

The House also passed two other bills which would set statewide standards for mobile and industrialized housing and exempt servicemen and "paper profits" as a result of corporate reorganization from the state income tax.

Senate leaders had hoped to bring both of those bills to a vote but said there appeared to be problems which require further study.

All of the bills have been reported out of House-Senate conference committees earlier in the day. The session had been called specially to consider them.

The home rule law will give local governments a chance to govern themselves. It also contains a sportsmen's amendment that would force any local government to give up gun control powers in exchange for home rule.

Rep. Samuel Rappaport, D-Philadelphia, who masterminded the bill, said the gun control amendment was a "horrible provision."

But it was the only way we could get enough votes for it," he said. "That just shows you how powerful the sportsmen's lobby is in this state."

Prior to passage of the bill, all municipal governments except in Philadelphia had to depend on the legislature to enact tax, zoning, salary, pension, and similar laws.

When the governor signs the bill, the municipalities have the option of making those decisions for themselves.

To do this the local governments will have to adopt a home rule charter and then submit it to the voters for their approval.

The bill also gives them more flexibility in the types of local governments they can set up if they want to change but do not believe home rule is the answer.

The home rule bill passed the House by a 101-5 vote. It cleared the Senate by a 38-7 vote despite a GOP move to table the bill for further study.

The two-bill drug reform package establishes a seven-member council charged with coordinating drug control programs throughout the state.

The bill directs the council to develop within one year a comprehensive plan to coordinate drug and alcohol treatment, rehabilitation, education and enforcement activities.

It also deals with commitment of drug addicts, emergency treatment centers and prohibits welfare grants to drug addicts or alcoholics who refuse treatment.

The package provides for new sentencing procedures which are softer on users and stiffer on pushers.

A conviction for possession of a small amount of marijuana would bring a sentence of 30 days in jail and a $500 fine.

A conviction for pushing marijuana, however, would mean 15 year prison term and a $250,000 fine.

McGovern wins primary; Muskie in fourth place

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota beat the pack of Democratic hopefuls Tuesday night in a Wisconsin presidential primary which forced New York Mayor John V. Lindsay to drop out of the race for the White House.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey battled to hold onto second place against the strong showing of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. With more than half the vote counted, they were in almost a dead heat.

Lindsay finished sixth, behind Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Henry M. Jackson of Washington. He promptly announced, "I can't honestly continue" as a candidate for the presidency in 1972.

"The returns are clear," the man who left the Republican Party for the Democrats last year said.

McGovern, who began campaigning first but had yet to win a primary, came beaming before his supporters in the Pfister hotel and said "it looks like a smashing victory for us."

"I believe this state may very well be the state that will determine the Democratic nominee," he said.

McGovern called the votes for Wallace — votes believed to stem from a heavy Republican crossover vote and statewide resentment over some of the highest property taxes in the nation — "votes that reflect anger and protest."

But McGovern, who had also hammered at the need for tax relief, said, "I believe I was the one candidate who held out constructive solutions to the problems Wallace has been articulating."

McGovern called his Wisconsin showing "a giant step for the people of America who want a people's president ... a giant step in victory over the polls."

He paused and said, "I am told to be very cautious. There's a certain amount of hazard in being put in the frontrunner position."

Wallace was as jubilant as if he were the winner.

He recalled his exhortations to voters in Florida and Wisconsin to "send them a message" and told his followers Tuesday night, "You folks certainly sent them a message."

"I think this is a great victory," Wallace said. "We ran much better than we thought."

"This makes me a serious candidate — at least as far as the press is concerned. We knew it before, of course."

There was dejection at the headquarters of Muskie, the winner in Illinois over Eugene J. McCarthy two weeks ago who had hoped to parlay the Wisconsin primary into a ticket back to the leadership of the Democratic hopefuls.

The 200 persons at his headquarters seemed sorrowfully resigned. An aide, Jim Bitterman, told, "Now we're really got money troubles. What we had was front running money — guys who wanted to get some money on the apparent winner."

Berrigan jurors making progress

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The Harrisburg seven jury reported Tuesday it was making "progress" in what apparently has become the longest jury deliberation in federal criminal court history.

Over defense objections that a mistrial should be declared immediately, U.S. District Judge R. Dixon Herman recessed the jury at 6 p.m. Tuesday and told them to resume a seventh day of deliberations at 9 a.m. today.

Attorneys defending the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and six other antiwar activists charged that Herman was forcing a "compromise verdict" by requiring the extended deliberations, which had reached 53 and one-half hours when the panel recessed.

Paul F. O'Dwyer, a member of the defense team, said: "A guilty or innocent verdict at this point could not be the result of a rational deliberation."

Herman, after 51 hours of deliberation over six days, called the jurors into court Tuesday afternoon to see what progress they had made. The defense earlier filed a formal motion for a mistrial, but the judge turned down the request.

When asked if any progress was made, Jury Foreman Harold Sheets, a Harrisburg accountant, told the judge:

"In the past two hours there has been progress made."

Herman then asked the jurors if they wanted to continue deliberations and if they could reach a verdict.

"I don't think we can do it today," Sheets replied.

Sheets said the jury wanted to remain in session until 6 p.m. and then return today at 9 a.m.

Weather hampers U.S. warplanes

Enemy breaches defenses

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops breached a main defense line by crossing the Cua Viet River at at least three points Tuesday and moved in force across the soggy coastal marshes toward what may be a showdown battle at Quang Tri City some 20 miles south of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

Two more South Vietnamese bases fell to the advancing troops and the fate of the country's northernmost provinces may be at stake.

U.S. warplanes made hundreds of strikes over the area to try to stop the five-day-old Communist offensive but they ran into bad weather and heavy Communist antiaircraft fire. Shore-based Communist artillery also forced back five U.S. destroyers who tried to stop the Cua Viet crossing with shellfire.

(In Washington, President Nixon said he presently had no plans to send any of the 7,000 American ground troops still in Vietnam into the area. "I'm not going to comment on what we're going to do at this point," said Ronald Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary.)

Exact casualty figures have not been available so far in the fighting. However, Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of South Vietnam's northern quarter, said the Communists have lost 2,000-3,000 men while only 200 South Vietnamese have been killed. Radio Hanoi said 5,500 South Vietnamese have died but did not mention their own casualties.

A statement released by the Hanoi delegation to the Paris peace talks also said Communist forces captured 1,000 South Vietnamese, seized or destroyed 110 pieces of heavy artillery, shot down or destroyed 45 planes, put 100 tanks and armored vehicles out of service and sank three boats.

The statement also said North Vietnamese troops freed 100,000 inhabitants in the Mai Loc "concentration camp" and other unnamed camps.

There are no American troops regularly stationed in the area, except for 65 men at Quang Tri City. However, at least 21 members of American air crew have been reported missing in action.

Using "dozens" of Russian-built PT-76 amphibious tanks and at least 40 North Vietnamese landing craft, the Communists streamed across the Cua Viet, which is 10 miles south of the DMZ, despite earlier South Vietnamese reports that the advance was stopped at the river.

Once across, the main body of troops headed southward toward Quang Tri City, most of whose 40,000 inhabitants were walking south the 32 miles along vital Highway 1 to Hue. Some Communist units turned to the east and easily captured a South Vietnamese navy base at the mouth of the Cua Viet, along with the government junks used in river patrols.

The troops appeared headed toward a showdown at Quang Tri City, where the South Vietnamese are expected to bring their northern troops as well as all available reinforcements from other areas.

General knee deep in mud beats back fleeing soldiers

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, standing knee deep in the muddy Song Mien River, used his own steel helmet Tuesday to try to beat back his soldiers fleeing from the advancing North Vietnamese.

He wacked one soldier squarely on the head, then asked the soldier why he was running away. The stunned and frightened South Vietnamese said he was trying to get away from Communist tanks.

"What tanks? Show me a tank. If you find one, I'll go with you with an antitank weapon," Giai said.

Thousands of North Vietnamese troops using amphibious Russian-built tanks and more than three dozen landing craft crossed the Cua Viet River, a tributary of the Song Mien, Tuesday and headed south into South Vietnam's Quang Tri province.

So far in their five-day-old drive, the North Vietnamese have captured 14 South Vietnamese bases. Hundreds of truckloads of supplies were moving down Highway 1, the major highway from Hanoi, to supply the advancing soldiers.

South Vietnamese officers said they planned to hold the advance, then counterattack to drive the Communists back across the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), some 10 miles to the north.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the military commander of South Vietnam's northern quarter, said he would bring in more reinforcements. President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered the country's three major cities — Saigon, Da Nang and Hue — stripped of all garrison troops to be sent to the north. Lam said almost all the hundreds of casualties suffered so far occurred in heavy fighting for the government bases.

At Camp Carroll, a regimental infantry headquarters, South Vietnamese troops tried to surrender, Lam said.

He said the regimental commander, an unidentified colonel, committed suicide when his troops raised the white flag.

The incident was denied earlier.

British troops battle IRA

LONDON — British troops traded gunfire with guerrillas in Londonderry and Belfast. Neither encounter resulted in fatalities. William Whitelaw, meanwhile, began his first working day as Secretary of State for Northern Ireland. Government sources said one of Whitelaw's first steps would be to review the previous government's ban on parades. They added steps had been begun to release some of the 900 IRA members interned without a trial.

Bomb kills Cuban

MONTREAL — A Cuban agency's Montreal office was ripped by a bomb, killing a Cuban guard. The blast came one day after a package of explosives was found outside the Cuban Embassy in Ottawa. In Miami, Fla., a Spanish language radio station received a phone call from a man who said the blast was the work of a Cuban exile group called Young Cuba. Seven Cuban guards were arraigned in a Montreal court on charges of possessing weapons and interfering with the police investigation of the blast. Police said the Cubans apparently feared secret files would fall into police hands.

SecNav resigns

WASHINGTON — John H. Chafee resigned as Secretary of the Navy. His letter to President Nixon didn't cite a reason, but Chafee is expected to return to Rhode Island to run for the Senate. A White House spokesman said Chafee's successor would be named in two weeks. (Details on page 2).

VD program insufficient

WASHINGTON — The dangers of venereal disease should be taught in all schools starting in the seventh grade, the National Commission on Venereal Disease said in a report to HEW. It said the government's stepped-up campaign against gonorrhea and syphilis isn't enough to control what it called an epidemic striking 2.5 million Americans each year. The commission also called for a fivefold increase in federal spending for VD control, and increased cooperation with the growing networks of "free clinics" that serve the young outside the medical establishment. # Tax consultants investigated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the U. S. income tax filing deadline less than two weeks away, a House subcommittee said Tuesday it will investigate the tax return preparation industry which grossed more than $500 million in 1970.

The industry is "basically unregulated and the growing number of indictments against preparers around the country clearly establishes a need for congressional scrutiny and for corrective action," said Rep. John S. Monagan, D-Conn.

Monagan, chairman of the Government Operations subcommittee on legal and monetary affairs, said the panel was "concerned about the qualifications, competency and advertising claims of tax return preparers."

Leadoff witnesses April 13 will be Commissioner Johnnie Walters of the Internal Revenue Service; Miles W. Kirkpatrick, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission; and Robert Potafski, director of the Bureau of Consumer Protection.

Monagan said the subcommittee on April 13 will hear Henry Block, president of H & R. Block Inc.; Rudolph Passero, president of the National Society of Public Accountants; and Howard Marero, vice president of Concor Services Inc.

Monagan said that many taxpayers do need assistance and that forms should be less complex but "the subcommittee wishes to assure that taxpayers are aware of and avail themselves of assistance that is available to them free from the IRS."

While "unscrupulous actions of certain return preparers" adversely affect the U. S. Treasury, Monagan said, "the subcommittee is also concerned with the financial impact on the Treasury that results from the deduction of fees paid to return preparers."

Assuming the average fee is $13, the industry grossed more than half a billion dollars in 1970, Monagan said. In 1968 and 1970, a total of 78 million Americans submitted federal tax returns containing signatures other than their own.

Republican hits budget increase

20 years of bitterness erased

Thousands pay tribute to Chaplin

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee said Tuesday that Gov. Milton J. Shapp understated the increase in the 1972-73 budget by $72 million.

The governor has claimed that his $3.6 billion General Fund budget represents an increase of $43 million over the current fiscal year.

Sen. George Wade, R - Cumberland, said however, the increase actually totals approximately $515 million.

"The difference in the amount of increase is that the governor includes as available for this year $90 million in deficiencies which have not been approved by the House or Senate," Wade said.

He said the deficiencies include $69 million for Welfare and $13 million for the Department of Education.

Wade also disputed the Governor's contention that $301 million of the increase was necessary because of mandates by the legislature.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty years of bitterness were erased Tuesday night for 82-year-old Charlie Chaplin at a triumphant welcome-back gala at Lincoln Center.

Some 2,800 Chaplin fans and show business personalities paid up to $100 a ticket to attend a "Salute to Charles Chaplin" at Philharmonic Hall.

The evening included a screening of two of Chaplin's silent films, "The Kid" and "The Idle Class," a brief speech by the onetime king of comics, and a champagne reception.

Proceeds from the event went to the Film Society of Lincoln Center to underwrite its 1972 film festival. In an unprecedented bid for funds, the society charged reporters $25 for their tickets and film crews making documentaries $460.

Chaplin and his 46-year-old wife, the former Oona O'Neill, flew in Monday from Bermuda for the tribute here and for the award of a special Oscar to the actor-director-producer at the Academy Award ceremonies in Hollywood next Monday.

Chaplin, plump and pink-faced but slow in his gait, said he was "delighted" to be back.

The government revoked Chaplin's re-entry permit in 1952 on the basis of moral turpitude and association with Communists and challenged him to prove his "moral worth." Chaplin, a British subject, chose to remain in Europe, where for many years he made no attempt to disguise his rancor against the United States.

With time, however, "the unpleasant things have faded," Chaplin told a visitor recently at his Vevey, Switzerland, home where he lives with five of his eight children by Mrs. Chaplin.

Sen. Schweiker disputes nuclear power ruling

WASHINGTON — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker (R-Pa.) Tuesday urged Congress to overrule Monday's Supreme Court decision barring states from setting tougher nuclear safety standards than those required by the federal government.

Schweiker called for passage of a bill he introduced last year which would permit individual states to set their own standards, as long as they are stricter than federal ones.

The Supreme Court ruled Monday that the state of Minnesota lacked the power to impose restrictions on nuclear waste dumping for a proposed power plant to be built on the Mississippi River.

"My bill," Schweiker told the senate, "would amend the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 to permit individual states, such as Minnesota, to regulate radioactive discharges."

"If states feel that public standards are necessary to protect their citizens, the state should have the authority to act," he said.

John Chaffee . . . ready for campaign trail

Navy Secretary Chaffee quits to run for Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Navy Secretary John H. Chaffee resigned Tuesday, apparently to run for the U.S. Senate from Rhode Island, where he once was a Republican governor.

President Nixon accepted Chaffee's resignation with thanks for "your superb service to the Navy and the country for the past three years."

Chaffee has said he would announce his future plans by May 15. He is widely expected to seek the seat held by Sen. Claiborne Pell, R-I.

The White House said Nixon would announce a successor within two weeks.

Chaffee and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird met with Nixon Tuesday for 15 minutes.

In his resignation letter, Chaffee told Nixon that the Navy and Marine Corps have been "in transition as a result of our winding down the war in Vietnam and our preparation for the period beyond Vietnam," but are modernizing and preparing for any future challenge.

Semi-final lottery drawing

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Secretary of Revenue Robert P. Kane said Tuesday the first semi-final millionaire drawing in Pennsylvania's lottery will be held following the regular weekly drawing in Erie on Wednesday.

Kane said ticket holders with "4" as the last digit in the March 15 drawing, "9" as the last digit in the March 22 drawing, and "7" as the last digit in the March 29 drawing are eligible for the "Sudden Millionaire" semi-finals.

He said holders of tickets matching the final digit drawn on Wednesday will also be eligible.

At Wednesday's semi-final drawing, the regular lottery drawing equipment will be used to select the first four digits to determine eligibility.

Kane said semi-finalists with the same first four digits on their tickets are those selected today will go on to the finals.

Late drawing

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania lottery drawing today will start at 5 p.m. The number should be announced around 5:30 p.m. The following week the drawing will be at Scranton, Pa., and the tentatively announced time at Scranton, April 12, is 10:30 a.m.

Slate blast probe continues

BANGOR — Fire officials from Washington Township continued their investigation Tuesday into a blast which ripped through a house trailer in this Northampton County community moments after a mother and her child left the structure.

Mrs. Allan Reeser told officials she had been washing clothes inside the 50-foot aluminum trailer when she heard a "tunny noise" coming from the furnace room.

The noise reportedly grew louder and the woman grabbed her son Scott and ran out a rear door. She saw the structure's roof and side engulfed in flames as she exited the trailer and as she reached a nearby road an explosion ripped through the structure which is owned by Clayton Rutt, Mrs. Reeser's father.

Washington Township Police Chief Richard Lane said a preliminary investigation indicated the fire and explosion may have been caused by gas leaking from a main line being repaired.

The fire and ensuing explosion occurred at about 2 p.m. while workmen from the Bangor Gas Co. worked on the line on Rutt Road a half mile southeast of Bangor.

The owner of the trailer told fire officials he had complained several times about a gas odor in the vicinity of the trailer.

It is theorized the leaking gas fumes may have worked their way along the ditch and collected beneath the trailer, Rutt said. Ignition could have been caused by the oil furnace as it went on inside the house trailer.

There were no gas lines leading into the wrecked structure.

Milford council told keep abreast of Tocks

MILFORD — The Chairman of the Sanitation committee, Carl Muhlbauer, advised the Milford Borough Council Monday night to keep informed on proposals relative to the Tocks Island Project and estimate their impact on the community.

Muhlbauer also stated the borough should continue to meet all state requirements at their landfill dump operation. He said the borough was fortunate in being able to operate this facility which he declared "saves us money."

President Merritt Quinn reported a survey was being made in regard to the placing of a light to cover a darkened area of Memorial Park.

He also reported the local utility, Pike County Light and Power Co., Inc., was trimming trees and replacing equipment to insure they would not be responsible for local television reception interference.

Mayor Donald Howe reported the borough's two full-time police officers are attending classes sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Police.

President David Fisher and Secretary Milton Staub of the Milford Taxpayer's League were present to protest recent actions of the Milford Water Authority, which they said aimed at denying them freedom of speech.

Fisher said "the authority members don't represent us, they want to dominate us."

The two men also requested they be furnished with a break-down of a $1,000 "bad debt" write-off by the authority. They said requests for the figures had been denied.

Boro support sought

PORTLAND — An appeal was made to the Portland Borough Council Monday night by the Portland and Vicinity Ambulance Corps for its support of a proposed purchase of a van-type ambulance.

Edward Shields, president and Lloyd Newbaker, captain told the council a van-type rig would accommodate four patients who could be transported and treated at the same time.

Shields also noted the present ambulance is not well suited for travel on rough, dirty roads. Council backing is essential for the corps to obtain federal funding for a new ambulance.

The corps reported to council they made nine calls during February resulting in 482 miles traveled and 71.5 man hours.

In other action, Councilman

Kenneth Rutt, reporting for the committee studying the feasibility of contracted garbage collection, recommended the borough seek bids for a contract.

A two-man committee consisting of Rutt and Councilman Gerald Zeman was authorized to proceed with formulating a proposed garbage ordinance and specifications for garbage collection for council approval.

The problem posed by abandoned cars within borough boundaries was also discussed but no action was taken.

Pocono exchange repairs delayed

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Turnpike Pocono Interchange improvements have been delayed once again.

Governor Shapp's Management Review Study calls for an end to all turnpike improvements, including the Pocono Interchange. The Pocono improvement, based on the doubling of commercial traffic and rapidly increasing passenger load, was previously delayed by PennDOT officials withholding approval.

The "Task Force" made up of three businessmen, has recommended all Turnpike revenues be used to pay off the $218,000,000.00 in outstanding bonds and make the roadway "toll" free by 1974.

With the Bicentennial just four years away, the improvements recommended by the Commission are vital to the safe and effective handling of increasing traffic. Going back to 1966, ten years before Bicentennial time, total traffic on the Pennsylvania Turnpike was 44,191,183 vehicles.

Last year, 1971, the total traffic count was 52,459,129 vehicles and growing every day. Traffic at the Pocono Interchange, when compared on the same basis, has more than doubled. The commercial vehicle picture is even more vivid — 22,000 trucks in 1966, 107,00 in 1971.

The Management Study did not, at any time, address itself to the physical needs of the Turnpike and the needs of the communities served. Secretary of Transportation, who recently predicted a 2.3 billion dollar Highway Department debt by 1974, had his problems compounded by word from Washington that there will be no federal money for freeing the Turnpike or highway maintenance.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission is prepared, out of existing revenues, to complete the needed improvements at the Pocono Interchange with no added burden to the taxpayers.

Vacant Bangor Council seat filled

BANGOR — Bangor Borough Council Monday night elected Hugh Parsons of 118 Pennsylvania Ave., to fill the vacant council seat formerly held by Ralph Grube.

Grube, a Democrat, resigned for business reasons in March as First Ward representative.

Parsons, the only applicant for the seat, will fill the four year term which began in January.

In other action, council voted to request a refund of $8,463.14, the borough's allocation of the state liquid fuels tax, from the Northampton County Commissioners for road repairs.

The town fathers explained the allocation had originally been intended as a contribution to expansion of the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport but is now free for borough use because the construction project is stalled.

Council was also advised of indiscriminate dumping of debris in the Washington quarry bordering the East Bangor highway. The owner will be contacted to discuss the possibility of erecting a barrier.

Safety Chairman Ralph Erdman told council repairs to the old police car, which is now in service, cost the borough $102.42.

Administration defeat on war powers bill likely

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Offaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Nixon Administration is pulling out all the stops to prevent passage of a bill to limit the president's power to wage undeclared war. In frantic memos to key Senators, the White House is invoking memories of the Berlin blockade, the Cuban missile crisis, and past fleet deployments aimed at threats to the peace in the Middle East.

But all the evidence points to an Administration defeat on the war powers bill in the Senate where members of both parties are fed up with the failure of the executive branch to consult Congress in use-of-force decisions over the past quarter of a century.

The White House is hard pressed, for example, to counter the assurances of Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., to his colleagues that the pending bill would not dangerously restrict the President's flexibility to act in all genuine emergency threats to the United States. Stennis, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, is in bed with the Senate's doves for almost the first time.

Stennis is aligned with Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.,

in the bruising behind-the-scenes battle which, as much as anything, is a reflection of congressional remorse over allowing the Vietnam war to get out of hand. Javits calls the war powers bill "one of the most important pieces of legislation in the national security field that has come before the Senate in this century."

Briefly, it would permit the President to wage undeclared war for up to 30 days in emergency situations but requires him to come to Congress if he wishes to extend hostilities beyond that period. No existing treaty would be considered as automatically self-executing or as constituting a specific authorization for military action unless followed by an act of Congress directly authorizing troop commitments.

Critics, of which Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., has been the most vocal, say it is impossible to predict all the unexpected and unlimited variations of events when the President may need to act without advance congressional approval. They also say the bill overlooks the fact that, in many cases, inaction can be even more dangerous than action.

The Administration is telling Senators that, once the bill passes, the President will be forever stopped from making a show of force in the event of belligerent buildups or threats of use of force.

The Administration cites these "practical effects", among others, of a statutory limit on the President's war powers:

— It would not have been possible to augment the U.S. forces in Europe at the time of the Soviet buildup during the invasion of Czechoslovakia since, in the words of the bill, the U.S. itself was not immediately threatened.

— An armed attack on Norway, Denmark, Belgium, France and most of Turkey and Greece would not permit any redeployment of U.S. forces or show of force, let alone participation in hostilities.

— The legislation would require congressional action to authorize the U.S. to exercise its right of access to Berlin should the routes be blocked by the Russians or the East Germans, since such an effort would run the risk of imminent hostilities. The bill would forbid any reinforcement of U.S. forces in such circumstances or related actions of the type we have taken in the past.

— We have often used the deployment of naval strength in the Mediterranean in connection with Middle East crises. Under the proposed law, deployment of Sixth Fleet elements would be forbidden because an attack against Israel or Jordan, for example, would not constitute a direct attack or immediate threat against the U.S. or its armed forces, as required by the bill.

— The president would be precluded from secret initiatives, such as the early buildup and deployment related to the Cuban Naval quarantine of 1962, or the Stanleyville rescue operation of 1964 so that the Congolese rebels would not be alerted to slaughter the 2,000 hostages, including 60 Americans, they had threatened to kill.

Sponsors of the war powers bill insist, however, that these are "red herrings" and that the legislation does nothing to strip away the president's authority to use armed forces in the event of armed attacks upon the United States and its forces or if it becomes necessary to evacuate American citizens in foreign countries.

The Administration, privately cognizant of the mood of the Senate, is hoping for a compromise along lines acceptable to the House. This would merely require the president to report to Congress when he takes military action without specific advance authorization.

Can Hanoi sway elections?

There are many things that can affect the outcome of a presidential election, and we like to believe they're all of domestic origin. But the fact is that elections can be swayed by foreign countries with an interest in who sits in the Oval Room at the White House.

In the past, Russian leaders have claimed responsibility for the election of the late President John F. Kennedy over President Nixon. How true that claim was is open to debate, but it is true that a violent action abroad, timed to elicit an equally violent reaction in the United States just before an election could conceivably sway a large enough mass of voters to change the outcome.

It almost seems as if Hanoi was embarked on this sort of pre-election gambit with its sudden push into the Demilitarized Zone, timed to coincide with the important primaries as well as the last dry spell before the monsoon season.

In jeopardy by this push is President Nixon's Vietnamization policy. An embarrassing setback for the South Vietnamese could seriously affect the President's creditability on the Vietnam issue (not as large an issue as in 1968, but there nonetheless).

Should such a setback force the President into stepping up American war activity in South Vietnam to prevent serious losses of territory, it would have an even greater impact on the pre-election rhetoric and might change the thrust of the entire 1972 campaign.

While that precise chain of events may not take place, it's an interesting and sobering thought that the American people could be manipulated into choosing a leader favored by one international bloc as a direct result of that bloc's subtle intervention in the political wars.

If nothing else, it's a thought that proves we are, despite our preferences, truly members of an international community. Whatever affects a powerful nation also sends reverberations through smaller nations: this is a known phenomenon. What's lesser known, though, is that the reverse can also be true.

That is something to think about when contemplating the issues on which presidential aspirants will be basing their campaigns. While domestic issues may press more heavily, there is a definite need to consider international issues as well. To paraphrase former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, "What's good for the United States isn't necessarily good for the world."

The Pennsylvania Story

More to bill than filing

HARRISBURG — There is more than meets the eye when a lawmaker introduces a bill in the Legislature, and for some, the mere introduction of a piece of legislation seems to be cause celebre to hammer the praise button — as illustrated repeatedly in the current legislative re-election campaigns now under way throughout the Keystone State.

For example, each general session, flocks of bills are introduced on such subjects as education, conservation, state government, public welfare and motor vehicles, to name a few.

Take the last named category — motor vehicles — in which will be found a horde of "routine" bills running the gamut from specifying the size of an exhaust pipe on a putt-putt, through stiffening the penalty for failure to signal when changing traffic lanes (while another bill would eliminate the need for signaling), to increasing the stiffness of driver suspension point system, eliminating it all together, modifying it up or down, etc.

Legislative beans
The point to be made is that a bill on mere introduction doesn't amount to more than a bill of legislative beans — except from the information and curio standpoint — or at least it doesn't to Capitol Hill veterans.

Not until a bill is reported out of committee (even this isn't really critical) or has cleared either the House or Senate does the legislative gem enter the arena as a serious piece of business.

Nevertheless, to the uninitiated, the fact that a bevy of bills has been introduced pertaining to highway safety, to illustrate the point, seemingly is a call to arms, a dire need for a tool on the horn to rouse the troops for a scramble in the legislative woods (the whereabouts of which they know not).

A bill upon introduction in either House or

Senate has a long way to go before becoming any sort of serious threat.

In the first place it is referred to one of the standing committees where it is given a screening as to whether it is just a crackpot bill, a petulant piece of legislation, whether it makes sense in relation to overall programming and planning, whether it is a hardship bill, is it feasible, practical, does it fit in with the pattern of the administration in power at the moment — plus a host of similar factors.

The important point to bear in mind is that many bills are introduced each general session to pacify squawkers on the home or lobby front, to say nothing of the yelpers in the pressure and do-gooder groups (plus the inevitable desire on the part of a local lawmaker to snow under his constituents back home with his record of bill introductions).

Number of introductions
The key on this, however, is not the number of introductions — but rather how many are finally enacted into law!

The past 1969-70 session (the 1971-72 session is still in progress) perhaps illustrates the point!

That session saw a total of 4,246 legislative gems dumped into the legislative hopper (2,669 in the House and 1,577 in the Senate), of which number only 655 drew final approval of the Governor.

Or, looking at it another way, when the 1969-70 session ended, of the 2,669 bills introduced in the House, only 453 bills had gained both House and Senate approval, while in the Senate, of 1,577 bills turned in by members of that chamber, only 240 ever gained clearance of both the Senate and House of Representatives.

In other words, sponsoring or introducing a bill is simplicity itself but making it a piece of meaningful legislation is something else!

History continues

WASHINGTON — Our History of the Whole Wide World and Wales continues apace. When we left it, France had been squashed at Waterloo and the British Empire was just getting started. It seems that the English were so upset at losing the American colonies that they decided to have colonies everywhere else.

This they did, protected by guns and fortified with pink gin. Among the many heroes of these campaigns were Gordon of Khartoum; Clive of India; Ernie, of Golders Green; George Best, of Manchester United; Permanganate of Potash (a small principality near Yemen); and Dr. Livingstone (I presume).

These were the Great Victorians and in addition to reducing native populations I always liked that phrase, it makes war sound so reasonable, like helping people to lose weight — they were stealing things like the Suez Canal, which the French built (in this case, the French were simply training for their greatest engineering feat, which was the giving up on digging the Panama Canal. Wait, I take that back; France's greatest engineering feat was the Maginot Line, which provided shelter for millions of Germans.)

England's big engineer was Brunel, who built the first concrete ship and designed the famous lead balloon. American inventors, meanwhile, were busy inventing far less interesting stuff, such as the electric light, the radio, the telephone, the automobile and the airplane. But we're getting ahead of our story and dragging our footnotes.

In India, England's biggest problem was blocking the Khyber Pass, but eventually it went for 60 yards and a touchdown. The defeat here was blamed, I believe, on Malcolm of Muggeridge. Meanwhile, Australia was being colonized by Perth, of Amboy, with convicts. In fact, the Australians are still prisoners in that remote spot, although few of them realize it.

This was the Crimea, where Florence Nightingale invented nursing, Lord Cardigan invented the jacket, Prince Wellington invented the boot; the Duke of Sandwich invented cheese spread; my ancestor, Hugh Campbell Mac Intosh invented the mackintosh and soup; and George Balachava (an Armenian) invented the Balachava helmet. The war finally ended with both sides exhausted, which led to the expression, "Crimea Doesn't Pay."

ITT miasma

WASHINGTON — If you set yourself to sifting fact from gossip and evidence from hearsay, you will surely begin to wonder how this Dita Beard-Jack Anderson, ITT-Justice Department, Sheraton Hotels-Republican convention drama ever got such favorable reviews.

Not since the Clifford Irving-Howard Hughes literary fraud has a single chain of claim and counterclaim piled up so rapidly amid so many square feet of confusing newsprint.

Reactions seem 180 degrees apart. Quite a few seem convinced that they are witnessing the most horrendous scandal since Teapot Dome while others are totally skeptical that anything of substance is in the debris.

Joseph Kraft, one of the most fair-minded of the liberal critics of the Nixon Administration, describes the ITT case as "a miasma of phony issues, artful dodgers, false leads and plain trivia."

He suggests, in effect, that the Administration has nothing to fear but fear itself.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania claims the Democrats are fiddling "with irrelevancies" while time to pass needed legislation is burning. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana claims that there are still unanswered questions.

Justice Department

Did the Justice Department make concessions to the ITT in an antitrust case in return for an ITT loan of $200,000 or more to San Diego to help finance the Republican National Convention?

Did the Administration make a deal with ITT adverse to the government's interests?

Did Atty. Gen.-designate Richard Kleindienst show himself unfit for confirmation by engineering such a settlement.

Inner peace

I was a very tense and nervous person all my life. I hardly had a day of peace up to the age of 45. Even though I had all the outward signs of a successful man in the community I was rocked with tension.

I undertook a course of study in meditation with a Buddhist teacher. My life has totally changed since then. I am just as productive as ever, but really have a new sense of inner peace.

I know you doctors don't believe in this, but I wish you would present my story to your readers.

Mr. E. C., Jr., Ohio

Dear Mr. C:

Your story is one that I and other doctors have heard for many years. Contrary to the accusation that doctors do not accept meditation as a form of therapy, let me assure you that it is treated with a great deal of respect.

There are many religious, non-religious, philosophical and psychological aspects of meditation. The removal of the body from the tensions of modern day, highly pressured civilization is called by some a "retreat." Others may find passivity by learning the technique of self-hypnosis.

For some, contemplation according to the teachings of Buddhism may bring soothing tranquility.

Zen, a form of Buddhism, is considered by some to be a religious discipline that requires

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Word-Builders

The Latin verb "spirare," meaning to breathe, is the basis for a number of English words. The English root derived from it is "spire."

Some of the prefixes used with it are: (out of, or away from); in (in, into, or upon); per (through, or by); and con (with, or together with).

Adding the prefixes results in the following words, (spire) (to breathe out one's last breath; hence, to die); inspire (to breathe in a supernatural; spirit or power); perspire (to breathe through the pores of the skin; hence, to sweat); and conspire (to breathe together, as two plotters with their heads close together).

submission to a master who, in turn, shows the direction for relief of tension and calm relaxation.

There are dozens of forms and schools of such "therapy". If they work, and often they do, the person who is transformed as you were, has indeed a wonderful gift.

I take advantage of your letter to point out to my readers that if they are troubled as you were they should seek some form of help and guidance.

I must confess that I personally lean more to psychological and psychotherapeutic approaches to such problems.

When one realizes that he needs support of some kind, he has taken the first giant step toward emotional rehabilitation.

Chile circulates ITT plot papers

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—The Chilean government Tuesday placed on sale 80,000 copies of the "official translation" of documents purporting to show that the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) tried to prevent the inauguration of President Salvador Allende.

Communist sources said the government was planning to protest ITT's activities at an Inter-American Foreign Ministers conference which opens in Washington next Tuesday.

The documents were released in Washington last month by columnist Jack Anderson. They were translated into Spanish by Chilean military specialists and other government officials.

The government-owned Quimanta publishing house printed the translations in a 93-page soft-cover book titled, "The Secret Documents of the ITT." The volume was priced at 25 escudos (about 90 cents).

Included in the book is an appendix with the names and titles of 59 U.S., Chilean and ITT officials mentioned in the documents and the complete original English text of the papers.

Sales were brisk at downtown newsstands although pro-government newspapers also have begun printing chapters from the book.

The Communist newspaper El Siglo said in red banner headlines that its extracts from the volume comprised "the true history of the infamous confabulation of spies and those who sell their country."

Puro Chile, another Communist daily, quoted reliable sources at the presidential palace as saying that Chile would lodge "a strong protest" about ITT at the foreign ministers meeting.

The newspaper said the protest will condemn "the interventionist and conspirative maneuvers" of the giant corporation.

Creamer asks for dismissal of reapportionment suit

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—State Attorney General J. Shane Creamer Tuesday asked for dismissal of a federal court suit by Philadelphia District Attorney Arlen Specter and others challenging the constitutionality of the Commonwealth's legislative reapportionment plan.

The plan, which went into effect last Dec. 29, was upheld by the state Supreme Court last Feb. 7. Specter was among 18 appellants who appeared before the high court in opposition to a preliminary plan charted by a special legislative commission.

The district attorney and others filed the suit in U.S. District Court against the final plan on grounds the legislative districts were "not equal in population and not contiguous and compact."

The plaintiffs were granted a plea for a three-judge panel to determine the constitutionality of the plan.

Creamer argued that proceedings in federal court should be dismissed or stayed on grounds the arguments presented were similar to those rejected by the state Supreme Court, which found the plan conformed to both state and national constitutions.

Creamer contended the plaintiffs had not exhausted all "state remedies," which include an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Student dies in blaze

KUTZTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—A general alarm blaze that ripped through a downtown tavern and upstairs living quarters shared by Kutztown State College students left one student dead Tuesday.

The badly burned body of Edward Romance, 22, Mt. Carmel, a senior elementary education major, was found just inside the front door of the Ale House more than two hours after the fire broke out.

Police said Romance was one of three students on the upper two floors when the blaze was discovered about 3:30 a.m. The other two, who escaped uninjured, said the three were awakened by dense smoke and made their way along the wall to the front door, but the victim apparently became separated.

As many as 12 students normally live above the bar, but most were home for the Easter holidays.

The blaze, fought by four companies for more than an hour, forced rerouting of morning traffic on heavily traveled Rte. 222.

Study unit urges education in VD

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A government commission, calling for new tools to fight an epidemic of syphilis and gonorrhea, recommended Tuesday that coeducational courses about the dangers of venereal disease be offered in all schools starting in the seventh grade.

"The venereal diseases have reached epidemic proportions throughout the United States," said the National Commission

Authority members face arrest

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Mayor Frank L. Rizzo Tuesday said that some Philadelphia Housing Authority officials may be arrested in the near future.

The mayor told his weekly news conference that "a number of them are on the fringes of being taken into custody" but would not go into detail.

He said detectives from the district attorney's office and police department have been employed full time investigating housing officials. Rizzo said arrests were imminent.

The comments came in response to questions about his unfulfilled promise to have the housing authority placed in municipal receivership.

Rizzo said he has instructed City Solicitor Martin Weinberg to study the authority and draft recommendations for "a good house-cleaning." The mayor said the city would take the agency to court and have it placed in receivership if authority director James Greenlee does not agree to the shakeup.

Last month, Mrs. Rose Wythe, a member of the President's Rent Advisory Board and local head of the Resident's Advisory Board was arrested and charged with misusing funds.

Bangladesh recognized by U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States formally recognized the new nation of Bangladesh Tuesday and promised to aid its reconstruction.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers made the announcement following reports by administration sources during the weekend that President Nixon had personally decided to recognize the Dacca government which, with the aid of the Indian army, broke away from Pakistan last year.

"As we now enter into an official relationship with the government and the people of Bangladesh," said Rogers, "I want to express on behalf of all the American people our good wishes for the future. I also want to reaffirm our intention to develop friendly relations and be helpful as Bangladesh faces its immense task of relief and reconstruction."

"There was no specific mention of either the amount or nature of forthcoming U.S. assistance, but State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey noted that so far the United States has contributed $115 million to Bangladesh through the United Nations for humanitarian purposes.

on Venereal Disease in a report to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare."

Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant HEW secretary for health and science, told a news conference that VD appeared to be under control a few years ago "with rapidly declining rates." He added there was evidence "VD had increased simultaneously with increased use of the (birth control) pill," although he said there was "not enough evidence to establish a cause-effect relationship."

DuVal also said that gonorrhea has now become the most commonly reported infectious disease with syphilis ranked fourth, "the bulk of cases occurring between the ages of 19 and 30."

"Despite the potent additions to our therapeutic weapons," the commission said, "both syphilis and gonorrhea continue at high levels in every country in the world ... and there is evidence that the incidence of both diseases is rising."

The latest available HEW figures estimate there were 80,000 actual cases of early or infectious syphilis in the United States in the 12 months ended last June 30, an increase of 15 per cent over the previous year.

Gonorrhea, which HEW says is about 25 times more prevalent than syphilis, afflicted an estimated 2.5 million Americans last year, or more than 10 per cent of the entire population.

In both diseases, the incidence reported by doctors and public health officials lags behind actual estimated cases by about 4 to one.

"Existing measures of control, while doubtless valuable, are of limited effectiveness. Clearly new tools are needed," said Dr. Bruce Webster, a professor emeritus of internal medicine at Cornell University and chairman of the 17-member study commission, in a letter to HEW Assistant Secretary Dr. Merlin K. DuVal.

The commission was appointed a year ago by Dr. Roger Egeberg, then assistant HEW secretary for health and scientific affairs.

Troops fight IRA gunmen

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—British troops in Belfast Tuesday battled gunmen they said were Irish Republican Army (IRA) members fighting to undermine a peace campaign by Roman Catholic women.

He said IRA machinegunners blazed a fusillade of fire at a British patrol on Lonsdale Avenue in the Catholic Andersonstown district, site of a drive by women to win at least a temporary halt to IRA bomb and sniping attacks.

British troops returned the fire but the gunmen broke off and fled.

William Whitelaw, meanwhile, began his first working day as secretary of state for Northern Ireland under a measure imposed last Thursday that brings the province under direct British rule. London suspended the Protestant majority-ruled Northern Ireland Parliament in hopes of ending nearly three years of bloodshed that has claimed nearly 300 lives.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Milton Berle got $10,000 for one performance at Mt. Airy in the Poconos. Their tub-thumpers would have us believe (it does seem a smash all-talent notion) there's a romance churning between Flip Wilson and Melba Moore. Bob Hope's selling his L.A. Valley Music Theatre to Sammy Davis, Jerry Kaufman and Donjo Medevine. WOL's house bachelor John Wingate quietly snuck away and wed lovely Jennie Deneuve. Maureen O'Sullivan at Mt. Sinai Hospital here; they won't say what for. TPT Chairman Harold Geneen's shouldering a flock of political black. He has to for his more-than-$15,000 a week salary. Priests Club member's wife grabbed the mike and piano and sang every time she got into the showbiz club's cocktail lounge. The Fraternal solution: they got rid of the piano.

New breed of ticket scalper feeds on the block-long lines at the five Loew's New York theaters where "The Godfather" is digging gold: they wait in the long lines and, as they near the boxoffice, peddle their places for as much as the traffic permits. Richard Burton's given $250,000 to St. Peter's College, Oxford. He'll be named an Honorary Fellow, consequently. "Honor Thy Father" Mafia-book author Gay Talese is abroad working on his next: about worldwide pornography.

Caesar's Palace in Vegas is dealing huge cash for a heavyweight championship. The Ringling Bros. Circus beds down at Madison Square Garden for its longest stay — nine weeks.

A young war veteran, Capt. Jack Martin died of polio after his much-medaled hero-service, but no one's forgotten the gallant lad: his friends joined in his name to help Manhattan's famed Mt. Sinai Hospital, where we attended the turning-over of this year's philanthropy, mostly from New York garment manufacturers: $400,000. The Jack Martin Fund already has given considerably more than $2 million to Mt. Sinai. The head of this marvelous and largely anonymous project, dress manufacturer Gus Feldman, has a personal interest: Jack Martin was Gus' wife's brother.

Lamar Hunt thinks he has the Army's and U.S. tennis marvel Stan Smith all but signed for next year's pro-competition. Dean Martin's divorce-bound Jeanne is asking a mere $10 million; interestingly enough, Dean's got double that — piled up during Jeanne's marital incumbrance.

Commander Ian Whitehead (the Schweppes-man) has good reason to effervesce: put his Connecticut estate up for nearly $400,000 — and sold it. A real feat these reclusive days. Commander Whitehead has done so splendid a British business-ambassadorial job here in the USA, we're amazed Queen Liz hasn't upped his command-der to knighthood. Never mind his fine assault on Britain's longplay deficit balance-of-payments; his image of a proper Britisher — dignified, witty, handsomely turned out and on, is a far better thing he does than all the Beatles-Mick Jagger etc. exported pot-culture.

Charlton Heston got time off from his "Skyjacked" filming to publicly-tour his re-issued "The Ten Commandments." Chuck must have a percentage. Zsa Zsa's most recent romance is Henry Kyle, a Texas-redundancy: Dallas millionaire. High-paid chorale sang for nix at the Casino Russe the other postmidnight: Peter Falk, Warners veep Jerry Leider and showbiz lawyer George Michel dropped highballs, grabbed the mikes and mangled Syracuse U.'s alma mater and campus marching songs. They were all Syracuse classmates.

Up-top itemed Donjo Medevine (among the syndicate buying Bob Hope's music theater) once owned Chicago's famed Chez Paree; his partner Dave Halper (nickname — Dinji) now is a bigshot at the Riviera in Vegas. Their names always were mentioned together — "Dinji & Donjo" as if they were a vaudeville act that sounded menacing; ditto the late Rocco Vecco, a beloved music publisher whose name constantly was taken in vain by Bing Crosby any time he needed a gangster-sounding stereotype name for his radio show or films.

Vic Damone must've satisfied his ex-wife's alimony-demands, which delayed his marriage to rich Texan Becky Jones; at last they're crooner and wife. Two of the world's handsomest males will be in New York any moment — Cary Grant and Lord Louis Mountbatten — for the upcoming Variety International convention. They broke in the act at Las Vegas but not on any stages.

Pat Cooper got his first Manhattan star-spot at the Royal Box of the Americana Hotel. George Maharis was his co-star: Pat solved the problem of possible negative effects on Maharis being billed beneath him and getting under-star routine by suggesting that he open the Royal Box shows himself, do about ten minutes, then bring on Maharis and return to finish the Cooper act at the finale; now the Copacabana's borrowed that wise scheduling: impressionist Jim Bailey (he does the fascinating Judy Garland-Phyllis Diller carbons) will open the Copu show followed by singing-comedian Julie De John, and a in Cooper-Maharis, close the show like a nice selfless top-billed star.

Old Ziegfeldoll Eloise Martin put together an impressionist act but didn't know where to stop. She got Joe E. Lewis' ex-pianist-conductor-composer Austin Mack to chop the act to manageable length. Eloise calls Austin "Mack the Knife."

The Lambs Club honored one of its finest old-vaudeville members, Charlie Mosconi of the famed next-to-closing dancing Mosconi Brothers, and the warm, affectionate turn-out was just what the nostalgia-doctor prescribed. Charlie's 80, runs a ticket agency across from the Lambs and is a charter member of the Lambs' elder-gang who lunch and dine daily in their dining section dubbed "Campbell's Corner," named after Manhattan's best-known undertaker. Every Campbell-kid is lively and healthy, tho old; and Charlie's far from the eldest; Harry Hershfield's 85 and the chronologically oldest is Jim Meighan, 97.

Tax collector files report

STROUDSBURG — In Monday's issue of "The Record," it was incorrectly stated that Claude E. Tabler, Smithfield Township tax collector, had not yet filed his tax report for 1971.

Tabler actually filed his report with the prothonotary's office on Feb. 26. It showed $436,967 was collected and listed his total commission and salary at $3,759.44.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Getting a moving picture of the Easter Bunny at work would have been simple compared to trying to get pictures of three children hunting the eggs he had hidden. The Easter egg hunt had been scheduled for after lunch and after they'd changed out of their Easter finery.

But one sharp pair of eyes spotted the first egg on the way into the house and the hunt was on with their daddy yelling "Wait! wait!" and trying to get the camera as they scattered in all directions, new shoes twinkling, hair bows flying, Sunday school papers fluttering in the wind.

He might as well have told the wind to wait. Having been indoctrinated by previous Easter egg hunts they had learned that the race was to the swift, they were off and running.

What pictures he finally got were probably flashes of pink vanishing behind the shrubbery, the soles of the new "George boots" on top of the wisteria, and ruffled panties upended as the captured eggs spilled out on the ground.

Pictures are wonderful for bringing back memories—but the memories for the picture-taker must include a lot of frustrations, especially at holidays when the excitement speeds up the action.

And the thing about taking pictures on holidays is that looking back over the family album, a stranger might get the impression that the children were always clean-faced, neatly combed and impeccably dressed—and smiling.

Somehow none of us seem to have the courage to take a picture of children having a tantrum, or snatching a toy from another child, or grubby-faced with their hair down over their face.

Which may be why grandmothers always seem so complacent about how well they did in child rearing. The only existing record of those early years prove the children were always angelic, don't they?

Highly vitriolic

It is no great revelation that people today are snappy, irritable, impatient, and highly vitriolic. (A word I discovered when I ran over an elderly lady's foot with my shopping cart. I discovered another word at the same time, but I can't print it.)

Anthropologists contend it is because we are overpopulated and living too close together. Politicians say we are depressed because of the state of the world.

Theologians explain it by saying we have lost our faith.

Personally, I think people are on the brink of aggravation and despair because we are plagued by decisions. I go to buy a box of crackers. The clerk says, "Soda, saltine, cheese-flavored, smoked, butter, round, square, triangle, garlic, pizza, chicken, taco or onion?"

"Just a plain cracker," I say.

"Lady, there is no such thing as a plain cracker."

I go on to olives. It's the same story. "Stuffed, chopped, black, green, pimentoed, almonds, skewered, treed, mixed or crammed with cream cheese?"

Knowing there is no such thing as a plain olive with a simple pit in it, I say "pimento."

The clerk retaliates tiredly, "What size? Midget, picnic, economy, family, bigo, jumbo, large, magnanimo, gargantuan or tub-o?"

Maybe it doesn't seem important to anyone else, but do you realize you have to ask for plain, white bathroom tissue anymore? That to shop for a man's shirt could lead to a four-year course of study with a degree in design? That to unearth a simple loaf of white bread could take longer than the discovery of the origin of the Nile?

I appreciate having a choice, but frankly I think it is more than the human nervous system can handle. The other day I went shopping for a simple pair of undies.

Within minutes, I discovered I had a choice of 12 different lengths extending from a pair with a turtle-neck to a pair with feet in them. I had to decide whether I wanted them flared, bared or tailored.

I had a choice of plain or pastel, ribbed or smooth, elastic or loose, body or bikini, floral or striped, stretch or fitted, sheer or opaque.

I could charge 'em and send, charge 'em and take, have them gift wrapped or put into lay by. I could pay cash and take them or write a check and send them.

Finally, the clerk became exhausted. She slumped over the counter and said, "Look lady, do you want to wear underwear or die of pneumonia?"

From force of habit, it took me 20 minutes to decide.

Executive staffers may exit

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Backstairs at the White House: If President Nixon wins reelection —and the White House exudes confidence that he will — some key members of the cabinet and top staffers are expected to leave the ship of state, sooner or later.

Insiders doubt that Secretary of State William P. Rogers will put in another four-year hitch. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has said he expects to leave the Pentagon, and Treasury Secretary John Connally has other fish to fry after the election unless he lands on the Republican ticket.

Connally is not expected to switch his political credentials from Democrat to Republican, but the three-time governor of Texas will be on the campaign trail defending Nixon's economic policies if not actually campaigning for his re-election.

Herbert G. Klein, White House director of communications, also expects to pull out at the end of the year. And counselor Robert H. Finch will be heading back to California after the election to sound out the possibility of running for governor in two years.

The word around Washington is that Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, is getting soundings from big advertising firms in New York — and that he's interested. Ziegler was an ad man with J. Walter Thompson on the West Coast before climbing aboard the Nixon bandwagon.

First Lady Pat Nixon's chief of staff, Connie Stuart, also may go back to her first love — the television field. There is a good prospect some —and perhaps many — White House staffers will be writing books after they leave, just as their Johnson and Kennedy administration predecessors did.

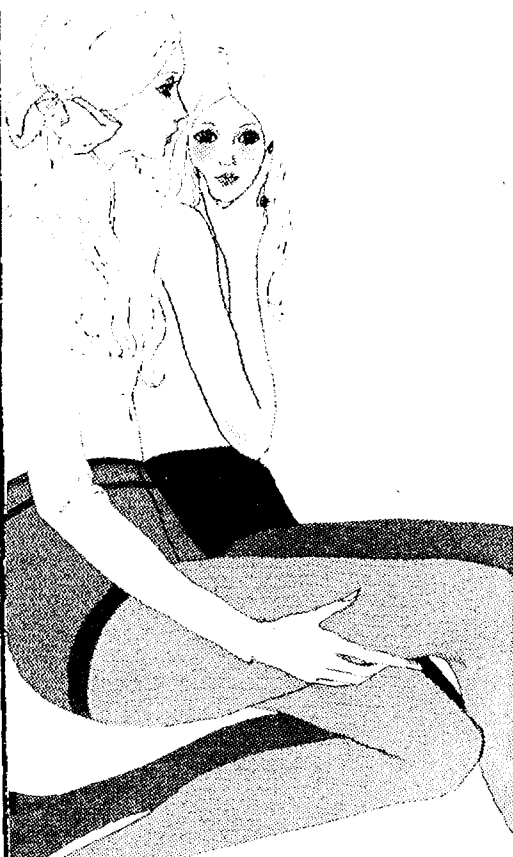

Mrs. Stuart may tell her story photographically, making use of some of the vivid film she has shot during her White House years.

Nixon's fondness for his two daughters is linked to one of his favorite songs: "Thank heaven for little girls."

The President recalls nostalgically that the number from "Gigi" was played at the wedding of his daughter Tricia to Edward Cox last June.

The bidding:

South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♦
1 NT Pass 3 NT

Opening lead—five of spades. Let's assume you're in three no trump and West leads a spade. It seems natural to play low from dummy and win East's ten with the queen, but if you did this you would eventually go down one.

East would win your first diamond lead and return a spade to establish his partner's suit. Your cause would then be hopeless, for West would have a diamond entry to cash his spades.

However, you can make the contract if you let East win the opening spade lead with the ten. If you do this, the defense disintegrates. When East returns a spade, you still have the suit doubly stopped, and when you then play a diamond it does not matter which defender wins the trick.

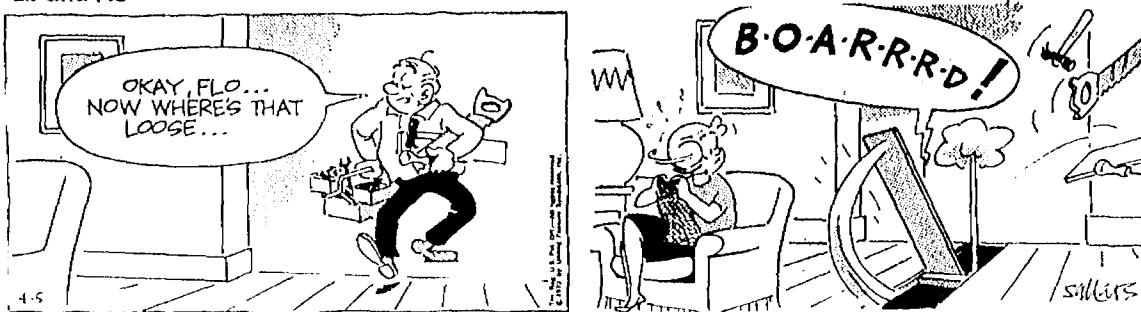

If West wins the first diamond lead and returns a spade, you simply lead another diamond and thus acquire nine cold tricks.

It is true that ducking the spade at trick one would defeat you if it turned out that West had the A-K of diamonds as well as five spades, but this possibility is distinctly against the odds. The chances heavily favor East's having one or both missing diamond honors.

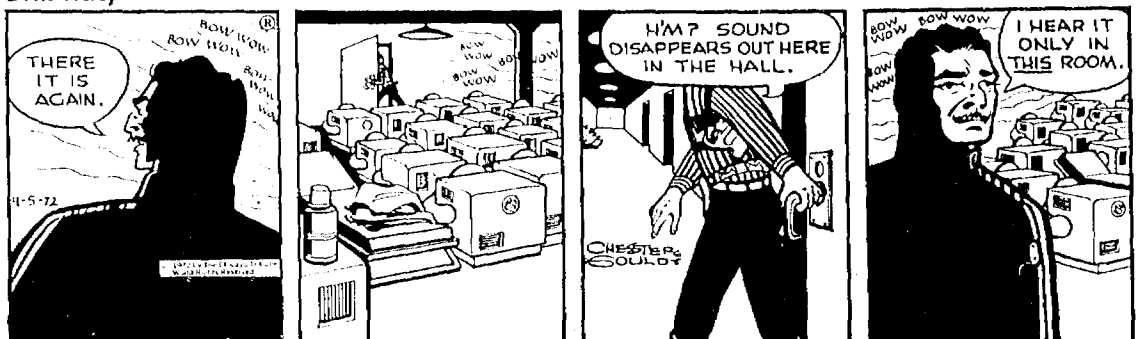

It is not as abnormal as it seems to let East win the spade lead with the ten. It is dollars to doughnuts that West has the king when East does not play that card at trick one, and there is consequently no urgency about winning the first trick.

TOBYHANNA — David Gutter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Gutter, of Church St., Tobyhanna, has been named The Pocono Record's Carrier of the Month for March.

Inspections still draw fire

By A.P. CESARE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Responsibility of the former borough administration and the federal government's involvement in the Stoufflet Street project emerged Tuesday night during the second neighborhood meeting on housing inspections.

Unlike the initial meeting when some 70 residents from the West Main Street area attended, Tuesday's program produced only about 20 residents — but sparked some probing questions.

The residents, 13 women and seven men, challenged borough and code enforcement officials again on the government's role, the right of entry, and the much discussed "workable program."

The so-called "workable program," the residents were informed, was just one requirement from the federal department of Housing and Urban Development. The housing inspections are part of an eight-part program HUD requires if funds are to be allocated for the proposed Stoufflet Street Urban Renewal project.

The subject of HUD's role was in conflict with East Stroudsburg, the other partner in the Joint Codes Enforcement, which had previously informed residents that "no federal" authorization was connected to the housing program.

HUD, it was pointed out, requires at least 205 homes in the borough be inspected a year. The program of systematic inspections will run five years.

One resident asked if the First Ward, in dire need of housing improvements generally, would have to wait five years before anything is done. She was told if complaints are filed with the borough's Board of Health, some follow-up would take place.

The former borough administration was held as "lax in duty" for not enforcing a 1968 housing inspection code.

Gross read portions of the adopted code and asked why the present situation is causing so much controversy. He said the borough had the power then to carry out the inspections.

After much discussion, it was stated by several officials the council at that time "was irresponsible because they did not enforce the code."

"Why the new ordinance (No. 519)? Alice Baumgartner queried. "You had a perfectly valid law on the books then" she said.

The reason for the amendment to the 1968 ruling "was to get assistance from HUD," it was revealed.

Atty. Joseph McCloskey, after being told most people disagree with the right-of-entry section, said it was imperative the particular section (Section 2.3) remain on the books.

"I think we need the ordinance as written," he told Councilman James Kitchen, who asked if the section could be deleted and still be acceptable to all parties.

"It's like asking a surgeon to operate but not to cut," McCloskey said. Most people in the two sessions held opposed Section 2.3 as an invasion of their privacy and a violation of the Constitution.

"In my opinion, if you take out Section 2.3 entirely, (you) might as well scrap the whole ordinance," the attorney stated.

McCloskey did say the second sentence, dealing with police and fire department assistance, could be deleted without too much problem.

No one could explain fully the meaning or the extent of the "workable program," although it was raised several times by the residents.

Conducting the session, Mrs. Ann Soles of the League of Women Voters, said perhaps the whole issue could be resolved in a May 9 public meeting

Building approved for ESSC

HARRISBURG — Senator Frederick H. Hobbs (R-Monroe, Carbon and Schuylkill Counties) announced Tuesday the General State Authority has approved a $1,948,000 science classroom building to be constructed at East Stroudsburg State College.

Hobbs said the cost includes $172,000 for the purchase of 10 private homes on Normal Street and Ransbury Avenue for the building site. Property owners involved have been contacted by the GSA.

The multi-storied brick and steel building will contain microbiology, metabolic, anatomy, physiology, and radio isotope wet laboratories. It will also include darkrooms, animal rooms, feed and supply rooms and a museum room.

Hobbs said, "I am particularly happy to make this announcement because it emphasizes the significant role being played by ESSC in our educational system."

McGovern headquarters opens in East Stroudsburg

EAST STROUDSBURG — Campaign headquarters for Sen. George McGovern opened at 14 South Comland Street, East Stroudsburg, Tuesday.

Staff members at the base said they hope to place three delegates committed to McGovern at the convention. The delegates will come from the 29th Senatorial District, comprising Carbon, Monroe and Schuylkill Counties.

Only southern Monroe is included in the district since redistricting, but a delegate from Monroe is running on the primary ballot committed to McGovern.

Trustee chosen for P.M

By CONRAD GROVE
Pocono Record Reporter

SWIFTWATER — The Pocono Mountain Joint School Authority picked Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. Tuesday night over two other banks to serve as trustee for the $5,175,000 bond issue for the proposed high school.

Monroe Security, trustee for the bond issue on the district's present high school, will perform the service free.

Northeastern National Bank of Pennsylvania submitted a bid of $1,500 for the first year and $1,000 for each year thereafter, while the First National Bank of Eastern Pennsylvania offered $500 for the first year and $500 thereafter.

The district's directors chose a 20-year finance plan for the nearly $5.7 million school last week. Coupon rates are expected to range from three to 5.8 per cent.

Both the authority and the school board will meet tonight to adopt the plan and indications are the coupon rates will be the same.

Tuesday's action apparently came about from local repercussions caused when the authority named Northeastern National Trustee March 21. The authority agreed to rebid March 27, after Chairman George Niering labeled the move "a terrible mistake."

The reason given for the initial pick was because Northeast National agreed to buy 10 per cent of the issue.

In his bid to the authority, Monroe Security President C.D. Shull wrote "an issue has been made concerning our purchase of bonds for our own investment portfolio."

"We respectfully submit that this issue is of minor importance in the selection of a trustee, as your underwriter will advise you that there is good market reception of the bonds to the end that the complete disposition thereof is no real problem."

"However, we advise you that we intend to purchase for our own account not less than $300,000 face value of the bonds of the intermediate and longer maturities as they are available from the underwriters."

Northeast National Vice-President Robert Hartzell said his bank would purchase bonds at $180,000 due in 1975, $185,000 due in 1976 and $155,000 due in 1977.

First National agreed to purchase $600,000. Francis Drake, senior vice-president, said the bank was interested in bonds due in 1975, 1978, 1980 and 1982, but didn't specify what the purchase amounts for those years would be.

H. Glenn Woodling moved to name Monroe Security, with Francis Reagan and Sterling Wagner casting "yes" votes and Lewis R. Lewis abstaining.

The bond issue has received an "A" classification by two investment rating agencies.

Law report not intended to offer recommendations

STROUDSBURG — After a year and a half, a report on Monroe County's law enforcement arrived without any recommendations. None were intended according to a man who prepared the report.

Harry Russ, of the Governor's Justice Commission, said Tuesday the document sent to the Monroe County Commissioners in January was not meant as an exhaustive study of criminal justice in Monroe and Pike Counties.

Russ said some decisions have to be made on the local level before any direction can be taken regarding law enforcement in Monroe County.

Termining the updating of local law enforcement a "tremendous undertaking" Russ said the project would probably take five years.

He said the first report was only a preliminary study and would be followed in a few weeks by part two of the Justice Commission's efforts.

Russ said the second segment would probably deal with designs for police communication systems.

He questioned how far the Justice Commission could go in providing direction without decisions made on the local level.

"They (the county commissioners) have to make some decisions before we can make some recommendations. We have got to find out what kind of system the county wants," Russ said.

He said he mailed the report Jan. 13 and he still has not heard from the commissioners. Russ said a letter was attached to the report stating the willingness of the Justice Commission to meet with county officials.

Apparently, the Monroe County Commissioners have given the law enforcement situation in the county a low priority.

Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis said the commissioners have not written to the Justice Commission since the report was submitted.

"We are just into April and there is no money in the budget this year for a county-wide police force," Mrs. Shukaitis said. "We have a great deal of other, more pressing, things to do."

She said the direction of the county in law enforcement should be decided by persons in the field.

"If these officials feel we should have a county-wide police force by 1973, then we will consider it," the Commission Chairman said.

Eastburg council approves annexation of G.E. land

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg plans to take 10 acres of Stroud Township in an annexation move placing General Electric within the borough's Fifth Ward.

The East Stroudsburg Borough Council voted unanimously Tuesday to grant a petition for annexation from the General Electric Corporation. The expansion will take effect April 26 according to law.

The statute governing annexation prohibits annexation within two months of a primary election. The land will automatically become East Stroudsburg property the day following the April 25 primary, providing no objection to the move is registered.

The council also established a Codes Appeal Board by naming three persons to staff the authority. Named to the board were Walter Rockendorf, Mrs. Margaret Kelsey and Robert Leseine.

The board will hear appeals from persons charged with violations of the joint housing code. There has been no appeals board since systematic inspection of houses began in Stroudsburg.

East Stroudsburg is due for systematic inspections in the near future. With the creation of the appeals board, residents of East Stroudsburg will have an official body to hear any problems arising when the inspections begin.

Three members is the minimum allotted an appeals board. At future council meeting the body may be expanded to its five member maximum.

Council authorized the preparation of specifications and bids on a combination basketball court-skating arena in Dansbury Park.

The action was taken on the recommendation of the borough's Recreation Board. The Recreation Board decided the year round facility could be funded by money donated during the centennial celebration.

The concession stand in the park will be put out for bids this year for the first time. Council approved a recreation board plan to have the concession farmed to private operation on condition a contract discharge the borough from liability.

In a matter pending from the last council meeting, a report from Hagen Manufacturing was accepted as an expression of the company's good faith on a pollution issue.

Hagen was notified by the council of solid emissions spewing from its plant on Harris Street. As ordered, the company sent council an update on its attempts to clean the air over the plant.

It said the company was contacting several anti-pollution device manufacturers and expected an answer from one concern within weeks.

Council passed a request to have the Police Civil Service Commission conduct a competitive examination for the position of patrolman.

Sen. seeks eradication of moribund projects

Ottawa News Service

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) will introduce a bill that would clear moribund dam projects off the books of the Army Corps of Engineers, but would not affect the proposed Tocks Island Dam project.

The Case bill, expected to be introduced next week, would revoke Congressional authorization for any Corps civil works project that has remained unfunded for eight years or more.

"Unfunded," however, does not mean "not yet built."

The Tocks project was authorized by Congress in 1962 and has yet to be built. But land for it has been purchased, planning and engineering money has been spent, and the Corps has done some preliminary clearing of the site.

Case's support for the Tocks project has been tepid recently.

He says he is suspending approval pending the final judgement of the Council of Environmental Quality (CEQ), whose review of the project has delayed the start of construction for over a year.

The Case legislation is two-fold in purpose: To free the Corps' time and money for environmentally preventive and corrective tasks; and to give Congress a chance to take a second look at projects it authorized more than eight years ago.

The old authorization would be resubmitted to Congress for its approval.

The Case bill envisions a new role for the Corps of Engineers, which has been charged in recent years with the despoiling of natural shorelines and rivers, for flood control, water supply and electric power.

This new role would emphasize the Corps' potential as a restorer of the environment, through new sewer systems, anti-pollution systems, and rehabilitation of strip-mined land.

A Case aide said Tuesday that the Corps, when asked why they don't devote more attention to correcting environmental ills, has cited the immense backlog of old public works projects, some of which go back to the late 19th century.

Five-vehicle accident causes jam

POCONO SUMMIT — A five-vehicle accident at the intersection of Interstate Route 30 east and 14th E injured two persons Tuesday and backed up traffic on the expressway as far west as Bakeslee until Pennsylvania State Police re-routed onto state highways.

The accident occurred at approximately 1:30 p.m., involving three tractor-trailers and two passenger vehicles. The investigation was continuing late Tuesday night and no details of how the accident occurred were available.

The two injured men, Alvin Good and Kenneth Winkle, both of Ohio, were the driver and a passenger in one of the trucks involved. Both were taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County where they were treated and released.

Total damage incurred in the mishap was estimated at $22,850. A detailed report is expected to be issued by state police investigators within 24 hours.

County planners discuss TIRAC resource inventory

STROUDSBURG — Details of the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council's (TIRAC) open space program were presented to members of the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night.

Chuck Holzbog, TIRAC's environmental specialist, explained the program's goal as the maintenance of the region's natural character and the expansion of recreational possibilities.

According to Holzbog, maps are being prepared for each of TIRAC's seven member counties to inventory their resources and serve as "a tool for development."

"The maps will identify fragile areas which, if disturbed, would upset the natural balance and jeopardize the key elements of the region's natural character," he amplified.

Discussing what he termed the current "hazardous situation" on Route 209 between Milford and Stroudsburg, Marshall Reese suggested forwarding a formal resolution to the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation calling for a paving of the highway's shoulder.

Reese stressed immediate action must be taken as a "temporary expedient" until the highway can be relocated as scheduled. Supporting Reese's proposal the commission further agreed to request the county commissioners pass a similar motion and forward it to PennDOT.

Reporting on his recent visit to the Shippensburg municipal incineration plant, Douglas Williams, planning and zoning administrator, said it demonstrated a "beautiful residue" without smell or vermin present in the dumping grounds.

Williams said the $700,000 plant served a population of 25,000 persons with one transfer station utilized approximately 15 miles from the main plant.

Termining the visit "worthwhile," he said members of the county's Solid Waste Advisory Committee plan to visit a recycling plant in Franklin, Ohio in two weeks. The committee is currently investigating solutions to the county's difficulty in locating a sanitary landfill site.

In other business, commission solicitor Philip Santucci told the planners amendments to the subdivision regulations' penalty clause have been completed and requested a date be set for a public hearing on them.

A U.S. Supreme Court ruling handed down four months ago required revisions in the clause that previously called for a fine and or jail sentence for those not complying with the regulations.

The federal ruling now requires additional time be given for compliance.

YMCA to undertake improvement studies

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County YMCA's Building and Property Committee has been commissioned to study building needs to determine priorities.

The present facility, located on Main Street, is now 17 years old.

A YMCA spokesman said the building is in need of interior and exterior work which can no longer be postponed.

He said, "The building has been getting exceptional heavy use in recent years. In the physical department alone, an attendance of 43,751 was recorded last year."

"This total does not include spectators at various basketball games and swimming events. Another 17,555 persons used the meeting room facilities. Represented in that total alone are 41 community groups."

"And, the grand total of 61,306 does not include the aggregate number of people using the lobby and game room facilities nor those seeking information and help at the reception center."

The Barrett branch of the YMCA reported a total attendance of 7,482 for last year.

The spokesman pointed out the 1971 total attendance was a new high for the parent Y facility. The previous two high years were in 1959 and 1960 when the total attendance was 56,550 and 56,436 respectively.

Executive Director Pierre Harley commented, "It can easily be seen with that number of people using the facilities why the building is in need of attention."

Edward Hoffman, past president of the board of directors and former chairman of the Building and Property Committee, has agreed to take charge of the study of the improvement of the grounds.

Clark free throws hold up as Baltimore tops Knicks

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Bullets made a pair of Archie Clark free throws with 2:08 left stand up as they defeated the New York Knicks 104-103 Tuesday night to take a 2-1 lead in their NBA playoff series.

But it was John Tresvant's block of an Earl Monroe layup attempt that saved the game for Baltimore.

Monroe, who led the Knicks with 28 points, 12 in the final quarter, drove down the left side and appeared to have an easy basket until Tresvant blocked the shot and picked up the rebound with 19 seconds left. The Bullets then ran out the clock as the Knicks frantically tried to commit a foul.

Clark scored 35 points for Baltimore which visits New York Thursday afternoon for the fourth game of the series. The Knicks grabbed a 52-47 halftime lead on the shooting of Walt Frazier and Jackson. Jackson had 11 of his 14 points in the second quarter to help New York rebound from a 29-27 first period deficit. The score was tied 78-78 after three quarters.

Lakers capture series, 108-97

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jerry West, scoreless in the first half, scored 23 points and six assists in the final 24 minutes Tuesday night to spark a Los Angeles Lakers rally for a 108-97 win over the Chicago Bulls to sweep their National Basketball Association playoff series in four straight games.

The win, the seventh straight for the Lakers in eight games against the Bulls this season, guaranteed Los Angeles a spot against the winner of the Milwaukee Bucks-Golden State Warriors playoff series for the championship of the NBA's western conference.

The Bulls, though playing without first string center Tom Boerwinkle and with Bob Love and Chet Walker handicapped by injuries, got off to a fast start and earned a 28-18 lead in the first quarter. They held a 50-46 margin at the half with a shooting percentage of 46.8 compared to 32 for the Lakers.

But West brought the Lakers from behind in the first five minutes of the third period and thereafter the Bulls couldn't come closer than two points.

Gail Goodrich dropped 27 points to lead all scorers while forward Jim McMillan caged 23 for the Lakers.

Clifford Ray was high for the Bulls with 20 while Walker netted 18 and Love 17.

The Lakers dropped 62 points in the last half while limiting the Bulls to 47, and for the game Los Angeles shot 48.9 from the field compared to 39.6 for the Bulls.

Baseball opening arrives; two sides continue talks

CHICAGO (UPI) — Major league owners held a lengthy session on the pension fund demands of striking players Tuesday night after the baseball season's traditional opening game had already been cancelled because of the walkout.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn sat in on the meeting, held behind closed doors at a suburban motel.

Owner calls Miller idiot; player charges conspiracy

DALLAS (UPI) — Texas Rangers owner Bob Short said Tuesday Marvin Miller, the attorney representing the striking baseball players, is an idiot.

Short said it's a disgrace the players did not fulfill their exhibition obligations. Mincher said the two sides are not even close to a settlement.

Short said the basic problem is one of communications. On that, Mincher agreed.

The Texas Rangers have yet to play on a diamond in Texas. It looks now like it will be sometime before they will.

Short discussed the strike from a motel in Miami, Fla. Mincher talked about it from his home in Meridianville, Ala.

"I think Marvin Miller is an idiot," Short said. "I'm not shocked by anything he proposes in his misdirected strike any more. But I'm not going to roll over and play dead for him, either."

"I think it's a disgrace that he's convinced the players not to fulfill their exhibition game obligations because of ancillary rights. It bothers the devil out of me that the Texas Rangers weren't able to play an exhibition in West Palm Beach Saturday, in New Orleans Monday and Memphis Tuesday."

"No, I wasn't consulted on whether or not I favored the players' latest proposal or not. I suppose our Player Relations Committee handled that. I respect their judgment, and, at this time, would probably have gone right along with them."

"I still think we'll open the season Thursday on schedule, if we can solve our communications problem. That to me is the big thing right now. The owners haven't been discussing matters with fellow owners, and the players and owners

The owners had dinner sent in about three hours after they got under way.

Bob Short, owner of the new Texas Rangers, who with New York Yankees President Mike Burke was leading the fight for acceptance of the players latest proposal, commented during a break, "We're gaining. We're coming to a point." He did not elaborate.

Burke said only, "We're making progress."

But Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland Athletics, one of the owners against acceptance of the players proposal, was overheard to tell another owner, "God Dammit, I'm going to stand firm."

There was no indication when the meeting might adjourn. The owners were huddled with their chief negotiators, John Gaherin, who announced Monday that they had rejected a proposal by the Major League Players' Association to accept a $190,000 increase to the pension fund provided the players could assume control of a surplus of interest the fund had earned.

The owners offered the $190,000 figure last week in Phoenix, prior to the walkout Friday that forced cancellation of the remaining exhibition games and today's traditional opener at Cincinnati.

American League President Joe Cronin was attending the meeting, but Players Association executive director Marvin Miller was not known to be in town.

The Cincinnati Reds opener today, baseball's traditional first season game because Cincinnati was the home of the first pro baseball team, was cancelled. A front office spokesman for the Reds, who had been scheduled to go against the Houston Astros at Riverfront Stadium, said, "No opening day date will be set until the players' strike is settled."

Kuhn's office said no announcement on Thursday's scheduled games would be made until results of the owners meeting were known.

Marvin Miller — players' negotiator.

aren't discussing them together, either.

"I hope we can come up with something constructive at the next owners' meeting. If we don't get things solved before Thursday, it'll be a long strike and the players will discover they have no steady income pouring in and that we (the owners) might just want to chuck the whole thing."

"I told my players all this Saturday morning, but it's high time the public knows how I stand."

Mincher said he did not fully understand the offer that was rejected Monday by the owners.

"I don't think the problem is money at this stage," Mincher said from his home in Alabama. "I think it's becoming a crusade with some of the owners. I think all they're out to do is crush Marvin and kill our organization."

"I wish I could sit down with someone who could make these proposals clearer to me. I just talked to Miller, but I'm still not certain I understand everything well enough to answer detailed questions. The actuary problems and interest rate changes aren't easy to understand, but, if we had better communications, maybe I would. Maybe the strike would end, too."

"I thought, from what I heard all day Monday on the radio and television, that we were close to a settlement. Then the owners came along and say no to it. Now, we're probably further apart than ever before and it's a shame."

Erving sank two free throws with 34 seconds to play that put the game on ice at 117-113.

The best-of-seven series continues Thursday night at Miami-Dade Junior College's north campus.

Hawks deadlock series, 112-110

ATLANTA (UPI) — Pete Maravich poured in 36 points and Walt Bellamy played his best defensive game of the series Tuesday night to give the Atlanta Hawks a 112-110 victory over Boston to even the playoff at two games each.

Bellamy, who scored 18 points, repeatedly blocked shots and tipped away passes by the Celtics, while clogging up the lane to prevent John Havlicek from running up his 35-points-a-game playoff average.

Havlicek managed only 14 points.

Maravich, hitting his jump shots and driving layups in the style which has him a crowd-pleaser, collected 20 points and 16 foul shots. His drives put four of the Celtics in foul trouble and Havlicek fouled out in the last period.

The Hawks, who trailed by two points at the half, 54-52, pulled ahead at the start of the third period when Boston went four minutes without a field goal. Atlanta didn't trail after that, although the score was tied several times.

Lou Hudson contributed 22 points to the Atlanta attack and Jim Washington had 12, including three key baskets in the waning minutes.

For Boston, Jo Jo White took up some of the scoring slack with 32 points. Dave Cowens added 21 and Steve Kuberski 19.

In the final period, the Hawks were ahead by only two points at 102-100 when Washington tipped in a rebound and followed up with two jump shots to put the game out of reach, 108-102.

E. Stroudsburg player, coach named to all-star team

Greg Miller

EAST STROUDSBURG — Greg Miller, who led East Stroudsburg High School to its second best season in the school's history, has joined his coach in a first for Cavalier basketball.

Miller, a 6-5, 170 pound senior, has been selected to play in the 13th annual Paxton Area Jaycees Basketball Tournament this month in Harrisburg. The tourney, scheduled for April 14 to April 16, pits the best seniors from Eastern and Central Pennsylvania, Washington, New York City, New Jersey and the Philadelphia area.

East Stroudsburg coach Scott Beeten has been selected to coach the Eastern Pen-sylvania team. Beeten, who played guard for the New England all-stars in 1966, is the first person to play then coach in the tourney.

Beeten, who played for Worcester (Mass.) Academy, was in the same backcourt as Calvin Murphy. He said Tuesday that players in the tournament are chosen by coaches, representatives of the news media and scouts from the tourney.

Miller, who is being sought by major colleges such as Niagara, St. Bonaventure and George Washington, averaged 18.8 points per game last year while leading the Cavaliers to a 15-7 record. He was selected as a first team Lehigh-

Northampton League all-star and was picked on the All-Pocono team chosen by area coaches for The Pocono Record.

Joining Miller on the Eastern Pennsylvania team are Brad Long, lower Merion (6-5, 22 points per game), Jeff Kriedel, William Allen (15 ppg and 10 assists), Joe Pfahler, Allentown Central Catholic (22 ppg leading scorer and MVP in the East Penn League), Joe Balasick, Marian Catholic (6-6, 21 ppg and all-Anthraxite League), Charles Brady, Riverside (6-7, 1,700 career points), Mike Sabol, Cardinal O'Hara, Philadelphia (6-5, 18 ppg, first team all-Catholic).

Also: Charles Ryan,

Malvern Prep. (6-0, 18 ppg), Carl Kenty, St. Thomas More, Philadelphia (17 ppg, MVP in city championship game), Rod Musselman, Souderton (39.5 ppg, state's leading scorer, second team All-scholastic and first team all-suburban).

Leading the Washington, D.C. team will be Jonathan Smith of St. Anthony's, a second team high school all-American, and Merlin Wilson of St. Anthony's, a 6-9 first team all-American.

Three high school all-Americans will lead the New York City all-stars. They are 6-5 Phil Sellard of Thomas Jefferson, 5-11 Lloyd Free of Canarsie and 6-9 Greg Grady of Eastern District High School in Brooklyn.

Leading the New Jersey all-stars are 6-10, 250-pounder Tom Guellich of St. Joseph's in Camden and 5-8 Paul Lape of Bloomfield.

Wally Walker, 6-4 of Penn Manor, a first team all-state, will pace the Central Pennsylvania team. Other standouts are 5-10 Lou Delfrotti of Berwick, who averaged 32 points per game, and Dennis Schmidt, 6-4, of Southern Columbia, who averaged 33 points per game.

Mike Arizin, son of former National Basketball Assn. great Paul Arizin, a 6-4 senior from Cardinal O'Hara who averaged 22 points per game, will lead the Philadelphia area stars. Another standout is 6-9 Mike Sojourner of Germantown, a high school all-American who averaged 25 points per game, 22 rebounds and nine blocked shots. His brother, Willard, now plays with the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Assn.

Also on the team is 6-9 Joe Bryant of Bartram High School, who averaged 26 points per game and was selected first team all-state and first team all-American. Sidney Sheppard of Mastburn High School, a first team all-city in basketball and first team all-American in football, is another key player. The 6-8, 240-pounder averaged 23 points and 19 rebounds per game.

Four games scheduled tonight

Long road to Stanley Cup begins

By United Press International

With the start of the baseball season at least temporarily delayed, professional hockey will aim to fill some of the sports void with the start of the Stanley Cup playoffs, which can stretch until the middle of May.

All four of the quarter-final series will get underway tonight with the defending champion Montreal Canadiens opening at New York and the heavily favored Boston Bruins hosting the Toronto Maple Leafs in the East Division. Over in the West, it will be the runaway division winners from Chicago at home to the surprise Pittsburgh Penguins and the Minnesota North Stars hosting the St. Louis Blues.

The best-of-seven sets will continue at the same sites Thursday night with the scene shifting to Montreal, Toronto, Pittsburgh and St. Louis for the third and fourth games on Saturday and Sunday.

At stake for the eventual champions is a record jackpot of $15,000 per man, almost double the $8,000 awarded to each Montreal player last year.

While the Bruins must rate as the favorites following their second successive East Division title with 54 victories and only 13 losses, they themselves are living proof that anything can happen in championship play. Last year, after romping through the regular campaign in laughable fashion, they were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs by Montreal.

Boston is also hurting physically with Bobby Orr, Phil Esposito, Derek Sanderson, Ken Hodge and Fred Stanfield suffering from various aches and pains. Sanderson is the most serious with a case of colitis that requires hospital attention when he isn't on the ice. Orr, Esposito and Stanfield are bothered by knee problems and Hodge has a bruised ankle.

All are expected to play today, but their degree of effectiveness remains to be seen.

The Bruins did manage to break a three-game losing streak by beating Toronto, 6-1, in their season finale Sunday, and they were the most productive team in the NHL with 330 goals over 78 games. But King Clancy, the 69-year-old leaf vice president who took over as team coach when Johnny McLellan was sidelined with ulcers, isn't conceding anything.

"We're pretty good down the middle with Dave Keon, Norm Ullman and Jim Harrison, and after all if you're good down the middle and you get good goalkeeping and the kind of defense we've been getting lately, we'll certainly be ready to give them a heck of a battle," he said. "I'm not saying we're going to win, but they're not going to back us up in any corner."

The Canadiens will be relying on goaltender Ken Dryden to pull them through again just as he did in the playoffs last year, but Dryden was unable to beat the Rangers in five chances this season. New York will be without ace center Jean Ratelle, a 46-goal scorer in 63 games before breaking a bone in his right ankle.

The Rangers beat Montreal three times and lost only once with two ties this season, but the players on both sides dismiss this as any indication of what will happen in the playoffs.

"The playoffs are a different kind of game altogether," said New York Captain Vic Hadfield, who scored two goals against the Canadiens Sunday to enable him to become only the sixth NHL player to reach 50 goals in a season. "It doesn't matter what you do all year. It doesn't matter where you finish. Once you get into the playoffs any team can win."

Chicago would seemingly face any easy chore in disposing of Pittsburgh, which barely snuck into the playoffs, finished 41 points behind the Black Hawks and managed only one tie in six meetings with them. In addition, Chicago lost only one of its last 17 games and only two of its last 23 at home.

But the Penguins, after turning in a 14-9-5 log since Feb. 3 to jump from last place to fourth, still expressed confidence.

"We're as good as any team in the league," said veteran forward Eddie Shack. "Everybody's been scoring goals for us, so it's not a Frank Mahovlich or a Bobby Hull, but a team effort."

Minnesota, with a superior defense that allowed only 187 goals, enjoyed its best campaign ever by finishing second to Chicago and should have the edge over the Blues, who had to struggle to make the playoffs.

Priest remembers plea for Hodges

NEW YORK (UPI)—Herbert Redmond grew up as a typical dyed-in-the-wool Brooklyn Dodger fan.

"I remember when [Robt] Field was built in 1913," the 63-year-old Roman Catholic priest said Tuesday, "my father was an engineer for the old Brooklyn Daily Times and he used to get me passes to the games all the time. I go back to the days of Zach Wheat."

Fr. Redmond, who is the chaplain for the Nursing Sisters of the Sick Poor and also works in the chancery office of the Archdiocese of Brooklyn, became part of the Dodger lore on a hot Sunday in May in 1953.

That's when he told the congregation at St. Francis Xavier Church, "it's too hot for a sermon today, go home, keep the commandments—and say a prayer for Gil Hodges."

That story was repeated numerous times this week in the obituaries for the former Dodger star who died of a heart attack Sunday in Florida.

The story has been repeated so many times that some fans have grown to believe it was just a legend. But Fr. Redmond actually made the comment in the spring of 1953 after Hodges had gone 0-for-21 in the 1952 World Series and then continued in a slump at the outset of the 1953 season.

"I never met Gil Hodges," Fr. Redmond said Tuesday, "but he was such a nice fellow. He was a very good example to young people and I really admired him."

The comment got so much publicity because a reporter from the New York Daily Mirror was in the congregation when he made the statement.

"I remember he hit two home runs that day and then he went on to have a good season," Fr. Redmond said.

Hodges did wind up having a good season with a .302 averages and 31 homers. But, alas, a check of the records fails to show a two-homer Sunday for Hodges in the spring of 1953 although he did break out of the slump.

He had two hits on Sunday, May 24, three hits in a May 31 doubleheader and one homer on Sunday, June 7. On Memorial Day, a Saturday, he did hit two homers. That's the stuff of which legends are made.

Since the Dodgers moved from Brooklyn, Fr. Redmond's interest in baseball has waned somewhat but he still follows the Mets, "when they're winning."

Fr. Redmond says he heard of the news of Hodges' death on TV Sunday evening. "It was quite a shock," he said. "I was sorry to hear it and I immediately said a prayer for the dead."

Remembering that famous Sunday 19 years ago, Fr. Redmond said, "it was the only time I ever said anything without preparation. It got a little chuckle but I never expected it to get so much publicity."

Hundreds flock in last respects

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fans and friends by the hundreds braved a steady rain and began paying their final respects Tuesday to former Brooklyn Dodger star and New York Mets' manager Gil Hodges.

Hodges died Easter Sunday, two days before his 48th birthday, after suffering a heart attack in West Palm Beach, Fla., following a round of golf.

Joe Pignatano, one of the Met coaches who was with Hodges when the Mets' manager was stricken, former baseball players Ken and Bob Aspromonte and Billy Loe and New York Jets' coach Weeb Ewbank were among the sports personalities to view the body.

But it was the fans, the young who could have only known of Hodges as a manager and their mothers and fathers who also remembered him as a player with the Dodgers who made up the bulk of the crowd. "The people began arriving about 11 a.m.," said deputy police inspector George Schaefer. "About 200 people filed past the casket for over an hour until the family arrived."

Hodges is survived by his wife Joan, son Gil Jr. and daughters Barbara, Cindy and Irene. The remainder of the crowd stood outside the funeral home when the family and close relatives arrived. They remained outside for 90 minutes in a steady rain before police again allowed them to file through.

The public can also view the body today from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Thursday from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. at Our Lady Help of Christians church before a private burial Thursday morning at Holy Cross Cemetery.

"I was just a 17-year-old kid when I joined the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956 and Hodges took me under his wings," said Bob Aspromonte, "I looked up to him. He was gentle to me and helped me along both on and off the field."

In addition to being a teammate for four seasons Aspromonte also played under Hodges as the Mets' third baseman last season.

"I just spoke to him three times last week," added Aspromonte who was recently given his release by the Cincinnati Reds. "I was asking his advice about certain offers I've had from other teams. It's hard to believe he's dead."

K.C. to keep Dawson for two more years

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Len Dawson, after considering retirement for three months, agreed to a two-year contract Tuesday with the Kansas City Chiefs.

The 36-year-old quarterback, who has played 15 years as a professional, said his wife, Jackie, had wanted him to quit after he completed a four-year contract last season.

"She felt it had been enough," Dawson said. "She was primarily concerned about my well-being. I've really been fortunate with injuries, but she sees the hurts after every game, both physical and mental.

"But she also realizes that if I'm not happy it would be tough for her to be."

Dawson enjoyed one of his finest years in 1971, completing 55.2 per cent of his passes for 2,504 yards and 15 touchdowns.

"We're all very pleased that Len has reached the decision to play at least two more years," Coach Hank Stram said. "I really think he is just coming into the prime years of his brilliant career."

What's a man?

Dear Ann Landers: Psychologists say both boys and girls in our society need a strong male image. I'd like to know — what is a real man? Definitions differ sharply. Teeny-boppers think a man is any male who turns them on. It's the sex thing.

The Great American Tradition pegs Man at the level of his physical prowess. The football hero, the heavyweight champion. The muscle man. (Never mind that sometimes the muscles are in his head). It's the Body Beautiful that counts. And he'd better be tall.

The advertising industry has done its best to promote the manly image as a guy who wears this, drinks that, sports a certain brand of shorts, uses a special after-shave lotion and smokes the longest cigarette.

I wish you, Ann Landers, would come up with a few guidelines to help the confused and the glibble. What, in your opinion, is a real man?

All Ears

Dear All: A real man can be five foot nothing and weigh 92 pounds — if he's compassionate, responsive to the needs of others, dependable, honorable, forthright, says what he means and means what he says, is gentle, loving, giving — and forgiving — has a sense of personal worth and can enjoy success in others. I know what a real man is because I'm married to one.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the letter from the Family Man Who Made the Switch.

That built-in radar talk is a fairy tale. It's true you can spot a queen if he follows the chartered dress code or gives you a wink or throws you a kiss, but if he's a Butch number and plays it straight there is no way he can be figured.

As for the closet queen who made the switch, there are two possibilities. Either he was a fairy princess looking for extra kicks, but no queen, or he's operating on different currents — both A.C. and D.C. — in which case he's skilled at the game and sends out no signals. Particularly is he not signaling the Boys In The Band because the last thing he needs is to have his wife catch him.

Fish With Feathers

Dear Fish: You sound as if you're well wired into both worlds. I'll take your word for it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 14-year-old girl with a serious problem. Mom died three years ago and Dad and I have managed with a housekeeper who is a nice woman.

I love this house. It's been home to me ever since I can remember. It reminds me of Mom. My school is the greatest. The kids are nifty. I make good grades. Everything I dig is here. Including a cool boyfriend. The problem: Dad told me yesterday he is going to remarry. This means we'll be moving into his new wife's home. He is excited about it.

I'm sick at the thought. I want to stay with my grandparents who live around the corner until I graduate from high school.

Dad could stop here every morning on his way to work. I could go to his place for dinner a few times a week.

Please, Ann, help me win this battle. I am 14 and too old to start over.

No Transplant.

Dear N.T.: Fourteen and too old to start over? Look, Doll, you'll have a ball at the new place. How do I know? Because you love where you are. Watch for tomorrow's column. There will be a letter in their of special interest to you.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 21 and feel like 91. The problem is I can't get over a lost love. I don't want to be melodramatic about it but I honestly believe a broken heart can be physical as well as emotional. I actually feel a pain in my heart. No need to go into the details but I can never get him back.

I have passed up chances to date because I'm so blue I'd be lousy company. After work I come home and play our favorite records. I read and re-read his notes, letters and poetry. I look at the photographs of us together. And I cry myself to sleep. How can a girl go on when her whole life has come apart at the seams? I need help.

Mood Indigo

Dear M: Get rid of all those relics reminiscent of the past. If you don't want to destroy them, put them out of your reach. Force yourself to accept dates. Push all thoughts of your lost love out of your mind. Easy? Of course not, but it's the only way you'll come out of your half-dead state and start to live again. Get going and good luck.

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago I read a letter in your column from a bride who had married a widower. She was terribly hurt when one day she discovered that her husband of four months was still carrying a picture of his deceased wife in his wallet. I was only 16 then and that letter had little meaning to me, but I remembered it.

I married a widower two months ago. He was carrying a picture of his deceased wife in his wallet when we first met. I'm aching to check and see if it's still there, but I'm afraid to look. This haunts me. What should I do?

Fraidy Kat

Dear Fraidy: Don't look. For your husband's next birthday give him a new wallet with a nice new picture of yourself in it.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to this newspaper.

Reservist stresses patriotism

CANADENSIS — The Monroe County American Legion held its 53rd anniversary dinner recently with a capacity crowd at Post 922 in Canadensis.

Guest speaker for the affair was Lt. Col. Dan Drew, Air Force Reserve. The national executive committee chairman stressed "Americanism—love of America, loyalty, liberty, individual dignity and hope in this world of turmoil and strife."

Guests at the dinner included Frank Skreba, state membership chairman; Ben Varvel, 30th district commander; and Claude Bond, county legion commander from Post 929 and presiding officer.

Richard Krummell, Post 922 commander, presented medals for meritorious service to John Olsonmer, post adjutant, and John VanDriesen, bugler for the post.

Certificates of meritorious service went to Albert Wescott and Marge Varvel, with 25-year membership pins going to Carl Christenson, Ed Olker and Tom Lewis.

Bangor students in France

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Six Bangor Area Senior High School students left Kennedy International Airport on Friday via an Air-France 747 for a ten-day educational tour of France.

Accompanied by their French teacher, Mrs. Natalie B. Ziegler who will act as guide, the group includes Barbara Bachelor, Susan James, Shelley Szakowicz, Kathy Treweck, Randy Trill, and Lou Bozzelli.

They arrived in Paris on Saturday morning and boarded an "auto-car" — the French version of a bus — to begin their travels that will include stops at Normandie, Deauville, St. Malo, Mont St. Michel, and Angers. Other points of interest on the itinerary are the famous Cathedral at Lisieux, the chateau of the Loire River, and Chartres, famous for its stained glass windows. A boat ride on the River Seine will conclude with a few days in Paris for sight-seeing and visits to museums, art galleries, and historical sites.

The tour is sponsored by the American Council for Nationality Service, an organization whose purpose is to foster international relationships.

Daley's machine stunned by votes

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley's "machine" was stunned by Illinois primary election defeats, but political experts agree it will still be a potent force in choosing the Democratic presidential candidate and in the November elections.

"One swallow does not make a spring," said Sheldon Gardner, a leader of the Independent Voters of Illinois and a longtime backer of anti-Daley candidates. "Getting our backs in doesn't end the machine."

Illinois House Republican Leader Henry Hyde said, "The Democrats were wounded, but it was far from a mortal wound."

That was the consensus of a dozen Republican and independent political leaders asked to analyze the March 21 primary results which saw two major upsets for organization Democrats.

They agreed that one major effect of defeats of Daley-backed candidates was to show the mayor is vulnerable, and, as state GOP Chairman Victor Smith said, "There have been times when we thought he was not."

But Smith and other political leaders expect Daley to show plenty of muscle when the candidates line up for nomination at the Democratic National Convention this summer.

"He's probably the most potent Democratic political force in the nation," Smith said. "He'll be a little weaker, but he's still pretty stout."

"Daley may not go into the convention as an absolute kingmaker anymore," an independent said, "but he still goes in as a possible kingmaker."

Daley, whom Smith called "a very practical politician," sometimes wins even when he seems to lose because he deals in options and contingencies, the political experts say.

An example of this thinking was the Cook County (Chicago) state's attorney's race. Incumbent Edward V. Hanrahan won the contest by a plurality of 100,000 votes over Raymond Berg, the Daley-backed candidate, and independent Donald Page Moore.

But Hanrahan, before he was dumped by the Democratic slatemakers because of his indictment in the Black Panther case, had been a top party leader.

No sooner had he won a renomination than he began making peace overtures to Daley, and the mayor responded that he would "enthusiastically" support Hanrahan.

Some observers, including Bernard Carey, Hanrahan's GOP opponent for the prosecutor's post, said they believe that Hanrahan was Daley's man all along.

With either Hanrahan or Berg, they pointed out, Daley would be virtually assured of a friend in the state's attorney's office, which he considers vital to his organization.

Daniel Walker, the independent who won the Democratic nomination for governor, presents a different problem. But, again, Daley has options.

Walker defeated Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, who ran with Daley's backing, by about 45,000 votes statewide and lost Chicago by only 81,000 votes.

Simon's poor showing in the city has led to speculation that the machine did not work as hard for him as it had for other candidates in the past.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, for example, won Cook County by 532,000 votes over Republican Ralph Smith in 1970.

In the March 21 primary Neil Hartigan, a Daley backer and Simon's intended running mate, won the lieutenant governor's nomination by about 300,000 votes.

 — Auspicious influences indicate new opportunities, reception of delayed recognition, the successful conclusion of pending negotiations. All in all, a good day!

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)
 — Emphasize now: Discretion, tolerance and common sense. With this formula, you can accomplish a lot — especially in the furtherance of new projects.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)
 — Fine solar influences now place you in a position to display the magnanimous and outflowing characteristics native to this Sign. You should accomplish a great deal.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)
 — A day for gathering information, sifting details of a project you have in mind. Well prepared, you should conclude it satisfactorily.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)
 — Not too much planetary help, but who is to prevent you from forging ahead on your own? There is a lot to work with and, surely, you have the tools.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)
 — The mediocre can never satisfy you, neither can the shipshod. So don't be false to yourself now. This day calls for your BEST, and your best will prove highly rewarding.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)
 — Your innate dexterity in tight spots a big aid now. Some unexpected situations indicated. You can meet and resolve them by planning carefully, then taking direct action.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)
 — Side issues may need more consideration than you have been giving them. Adapt yourself to new trends, but where old tactics still have value, don't shunt them aside.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Job hunt costly

JOB HUNTING: (Q.) I have a girl friend with an older sister who works. This girl told me I could get a job at the company where she works. I went there and looked her up. She made me leave. She said I could get her fired hanging around. When I got home she called me and told me she had been fired.

Now their mother won't let me see my girl friend. She thinks I just used her to get to her sister. I love my girl friend but her mother doesn't believe I do. What do I do?

All Messed Up in Missouri: (A.) You shouldn't have gone to see the girl at the company. You should have gone to the personnel office. That's where people go to look for jobs.

Many employers do not permit workers to have visitors during job hours. I doubt, though, that the girl was fired just because of your visit. Possibly there were already other complaints against her.

Visit your girl friend's mother and apologize for any trouble you may have caused. Talk to her about your personal interest in her younger daughter. Ask her to let you see your girl friend again.

CalLED? (Q.) I think I am called to be a nun. I am scared. I can't understand why. I am not holy at all. I am always getting into trouble.

I can't tell anyone. They would think I am a weirdo.

One nun is a pretty good friend of mine. But how can I tell her? She knows how bad I am and would probably laugh in my face.

Afraid in New Jersey

(A.) Do not fret about being imperfect. If God had to have perfect people to do His work He would have no one.

Tell your friend the nun about what you think. She will not laugh at you.

PARTY: (Q.) I'll be 13 on Sunday. My mother says I'm too old for a party. Do you think I am?

Party Lover in Indiana.

(A.) We never get too old for parties. But for a party to be a success it must fit our age and our mood.

Your mother probably has in mind ice cream and cake and gifts when you talk to her about a party. You may have the same idea. That's a little young for a 13-year-old. Talk to her about something more mature. Maybe you could take a few of your best friends out to lunch, or dinner.

BROKEN MIRROR: (Q.) Do you think a girl of 12 should have to pay for a mirror she broke by mistake? My mother and father agree that I should stay home from games and dances until I pay it off in time.

In Debt in Oklahoma

(A.) Taking away privileges, as your mother and father are doing, is usually one of the most humane and effective ways of disciplining teenagers.

The question for you is, did you break the mirror completely by accident, or did you break it on purpose?

Only you can answer that question. When you broke it, were you angry, or impatient, or careless? Did you feel like breaking something?

If the answer to all these questions is no, and the fact is that the break was unavoidable and a sheer accident, then you should tell your parents that fact and ask them to reconsider.

LISA: (Q.) I met Lisa last year and we have been very good friends ever since. In the last month I have asked her to go out with me twice. Both times she said, "You're the nicest boy I know, but I don't want you for a boy friend."

Every day I walk her home from school and sometimes some kid asks if Lisa is my girl friend. When this happens she gets upset and says we are just friends.

Can you tell me why, if Lisa tells me she likes me, she will not go with me, or doesn't want anyone to think we go together?

Lisa's Friend in Oregon

(A.) At least for now, Lisa wants to keep your friendship on something short of a romantic basis.

In a friendship like this, things sometimes progress to romance, but not always. Lisa, for instance, may have some other boy in mind who thus far has not been so nice to her as you have. Later he may be. Or he may not. If he isn't, Lisa may grow to feel closer to you.

If you enjoy her company, keep things as they are, pleasant and friendly. Insisting on something more personal might cost you all you have gained up to now.

Fire companies kept busy fighting area grass blazes

MINISINK HILLS — The Shawnee Volunteer Fire Department fought two grass fires late Monday afternoon, both of which appeared to be deliberately set according to Fire Chief George Fuller.

The first alarm was turned in at approximately 5 p.m. and consisted of about two acres of burning grass behind St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Minisink Hills.

Nine firemen and three pieces of equipment were required to extinguish the fire.

While returning to the station house the firemen discovered another grass fire atop Shawnee Hill near Shawnee Village. About one acre was burned before the fire could be put out.

Chief Fuller said no burning debris or cigarettes could be found in the area which places the origin of the fires in a suspicious light.

Fire fighters from Marshalls Creek were also called out to a grass fire Monday afternoon at Spring Lake on Franklin Hill.

Three trucks and 20 men responded to the small fire which could only burn about one-quarter acre before it was put out.

Later in the evening the Marshalls Creek department was called out again when diesel fuel was inadvertently put in a conventional gas powered truck. The truck began smoking badly when it was started and it was thought to be on fire. The firemen returned home when it was discovered where the smoke was coming from.
